Koreds Claim Big U.S. Plane Shot Down

TOKYO (AP) — The North Koreans, who captured the intelligence ship Pueblo, reported their air force shot down a large U.S. reconnaissance plane today. The U.S. Defense Department said a Navy reconnaissance plane with 31 aboard was missing in the Sea of Japan.

Japanese fishing boats joined U.S. planes in a search for survivors. The U.S. Embassy in Moscow asked the Foreign Ministry for the assistance of any Soviet ships in the area.

The EC121 is heavily loaded with electronic gear, as was the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo which was captured off the North Koran coast on Jan. 23, 1968 The U.S. claimed at the time the ship was in international waters about 25 miles off the North Korean coast.

Search operations today apparently were centered within 200 miles of where the Pueblo and its 83 crewmen were captured. The crew was released late last year.

The missing airplane is a converted Lockheed Super Constellation which has a big hump in the top of the fuselage to carry radar and other monitoring devices.

"It is a large-crew airplane," the spokesman said, confirming that 31 men would not be an unusual number to be aboard. The monitoring equipment requires a number of operators.

The official Korean Central News Agency said "a large-size modernly equipped reconnaissance plane" intruded deep into North Korean air space and was shot down at 1:50 p.m. EST Monday.

The broadcast gave no information on the fate of those aboard.

It said only that the North Korean air force shot the plane down at a high altitude "by showering fire of revenge upon it."

The U.S. Defense Department said a four-engine Navy EC121 propeller reconnaissance plane based at Atsugi, Japan, has been missing since 2:10 p.m.

A spokesman said the flight began about 7:01 a.m. and the aircraft commander was under orders to approach no closer than 50 miles to the coast of North Korea.

In Seoul, a high-ranking U.S. military spokesman refused to comment on the reports.

The North Korean agency said the "U.S. imperialist aggressor army which has been rapidly intensifying the war provocation maneuvers against North Korea of late perpetrated on the morning of the 15th the grave provocation of infiltrating deep into the territorial air of the republic a large-size modernly equipped reconnaissance plane to conduct reconnaissance, while perpetrating grave provocations along the military demarcation line."

It said the North Korean air force "instantly spotted" the plane and "scored the brilliant battle success" of shooting it down.

"The U.S. imperialist aggressors must bear in mind that the stern warning of the Korean People's Army is not empty talk and the Korean People's Army counters any provocation of the U.S. imperialist aggressors instantly with a hundred-fold, thousand-fold retaliatory blow," the broadcast said.

The Pentagon said an air search was being made approximately 95 miles southeast of Chongjin, North Korea.

About the time of the announcement in Washington, the U.S. Navy in Saigon abruptly cancelled an awards ceremony Wednesday aboard the aircraft carrier Ranger off Vietnam. A Navy spokesman in Saigon said he did not know if the cancellation was directly connected with the plane incident.

South Vietnam's defense minister and other officials had been scheduled to go aboard the Ranger to present medals to about 50 U.S. Navy men.

Viet Red Attack Smashed By GIs

198 Of Enemy Said Slain At U.S. Camp

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. ground troops, planes and artillery killed at least 198 North Vietnamese soldiers early today when two enemy battalions tried to overrun a day-old camp near the Cambodian border, the U.S. Command reported.

Thirteen Americans were killed and three were wounded, an American spokesman said.

Later, an American air observer reported "40 to 50" enemy dead stacked in a field two miles from the battle site on the Cambodian side of the border. Apparently they had been carried away by the North Vietnamese for burial.

"We had helicopter gunships working from the northwest, planes from the south and artillery firing from seven different locations on the enemy," said one officer.

The base, known as Diamond III, was carved out of the jungle about 30 miles northwest of Saigon Monday by infantrymen of the 25th Division's 2nd Battalion. Hours later the GIs detected movement 200 yards beyond the camp perimeter and called in artillery support.

A division spokesman said about 500 enemy troops attacked at 3:15 a.m., charging out of the woods in waves from three directions, firing rocket grenades, mortars and small arms.

Lt. Col. Vincent Oddi of Green Cove Springs, Fla., the 2nd Battalion commander, directed the battle from a helicopter overhead. Another helicopter used a searchlight to illuminate enemy gun positions, and gunships knocked out two .51 - caliber antiaircraft guns that were firing on the American infantrymen.

After the battle, infantrymen swept the area and captured eight wounded prisoners and a truckload of enemy weapons, including 40 automatic rifles, 34 rocket - grenade launchers, 198 rocket grenades and 291 hand grenades.

It was the third attack in two weeks against a new 25th Division firebase near the enemy's Cambodian sanctuaries. U. S. troops repelled the earlier attacks on bases named Diamond and Diamond II, and as Diamond III was being built Monday, about two miles from Diamond II, a U.S. officer had said: "we hope that our luck with the name holds."

With the Viet Cong's spring offensive now in its eighth week, 20 overnight rocket and mortar attacks caused light damage at allied military bases and a few towns, spokesmen said.

Commissioners Study Alternative Solid Waste Disposal Program

Pickaway County Commissioners have launched a study of an alternative to a county landfill for trash disposal.

The alternative is contracting with the Great Lakes Industrial Sales Co. and the Cadiz Land Development Co. for solid waste disposal.

Commissioners met Monday with W. C. Devitt, who is associated with the Great Lakes Industrial Sales Co. Devitt told commissioners his firm had an approved landfill disposal site and was ready to handle solid wastes now.

However, commissioners must first solve the problem of baling and delivering solid wastes to the site.

* * *

DEVITT "guesstimated" that commissioners would have to invest approximately $300,000 in a building and baling machine to handle waste here.

The building would have to be located close to the railroad to provide transportation to the dump site, which is in Harrison County.

Devitt told commissioners that his firm would handle the solid waste at $1.25 per ton. However, the county would have to lease or purchase the refuse baler and also pay transportation costs.

Although Devitt could not quote any rail freight rates from Circleville to the landfill site, he said that one trucking firm offered to haul the wastes at a cost of $3 per ton in minimum 25 ton loads. He noted it is economically unfeasible to haul the waste without first baling it.

"This is a new program and we are just getting started," Devitt told County Commissioners Wayne Hines, Dick T. Tootle and Charles Morris. He explained that he could not quote exact rates because of the newness of the program.

When commissioners expressed a desire to study the method of waste disposal further, he said that he would have the firm's engineers study the Circleville and Pickaway County situation more closely. Commission Chairman Morris asked Devitt to provide the county with more specific cost figures.

* * *

MORRIS said that commissioners from Ross, Fayette and Fairfield counties will be invited to attend a meeting to discuss the proposal.

"They are facing the same problem we are," Morris said. In addition, representatives of local industry will be invited to attend the meeting, Morris said.

The new waste disposal system was first called to the attention of Commissioners by Ned Dresbach and a committee of Washington Twp. residents who objected to the proposed county landfill on the old county infirmary farm.

Dresbach contacted Devitt and arranged yesterday's meeting.

Commissioners are faced with a July 1 deadline to have a sanitary landfill or some approved form of solid waste disposal in operation.

Jury Ponders Sirhan's Fate

Choice Of 4 Verdicts Studied

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The fate of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan rests with a jury that must weigh this question: how ill was he, mentally, when he killed Robert F. Kennedy?

The bantamweight, 25-year-old Jordanian Arab who put a gun to the head of the New York's senator last June 5 watched stolidly as the jury of seven men and five women filed from the courtroom Monday to fix the degree of his crime.

Instructed by Judge Herbert V. Walker to be "uninfluenced by pity for the defendant or by passion or by prejudice against him," the jury can return any of four possible verdicts:

—First degree murder — asked by the state—with the penalty of life in prison or death. The penalty would be determined by the jury in a separate session.

—Second degree murder—asked by the defense—with the term of five years to life in prison.

—Manslaughter, one to 10 years.

—Acquittal.

The defense contended that Sirhan's mind was so blurred that the crime didn't meet the legal definition of first degree murder. But it did not ask for the other possible verdicts of manslaughter or outright acquittal.

Prosecutor Lynn D. Compton, in his final argument, had this to say about the testimony of mental experts in the case:

"The psychiatrists say if you hate a man a little bit and kill him, you are responsible and mature; but if you hate him a lot and kill him, you are not responsible and not mature."

Compton wound up with a plea to the jury not to "put a premium on hate" by returning a verdict of less than first degree.

2,000 Rebellious Convicts Wreck 2 Italian Prisons

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Two thousand rebellious convicts were transferred in chains today from two of Northern Italy's biggest prisons. Both were wrecked beyond repair in three days of rioting.

At Milan's San Vittore jail the last of 1,300 rampaging convicts raised their hands in surrender early today after a two prong assault by police who invaded the prison in a cloud of tear gas. More than 100 policemen and about 20 prisoners were injured.

More than 600 prisoners had surrendered at Turin, leaving less than 400 convicts huddled in the ruins of the prison there. Police said they were surrendering as fast as officers could handcuff them, load them aboard trucks and send them to jails in Sicily and Sardinia.

The holdouts were expected to be cleared out of the Turin prison by evening.

Spokesmen said only about 300 women and a few sick prisoners will remain in the Milan prison, which suffered an estimated $800,000 worth of damage. Officials said the damage at Turin might exceed that figure. Only the women's sections at both prisons were undamaged.

Demanding "women, communism, liberty and new regulations," the male convicts at San Vittore took wardens as hostages and beat off police with iron bars, knives and wooden clubs. But a combined assault by local police and national carabinieri ended the rebellion.

Shortly before dawn local police broke into the prison yard through a side gate under cover of hundreds of tear gas bombs. As the club-swinging prisoners were driven back, hundreds of carabinieri charged through the main gates.

The convicts fled to the prison roofs and hurled flaming torches and roofing tiles on the heads of the police climbing up to battle with them. Once the police won footholds on the roofs, the resistance broke.

Head Start Not Working, Solons Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress was told Monday that the federal government's Head Start program has had no appreciable success in improving the learning capabilities of impoverished grade school children.

The preliminary findings were contained in a report prepared by the Westinghouse Learning Corp., working with Ohio University, and sent to Congress by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The report found that poor children who took part in the preschool federal antipoverty program were not appreciably better off, once they reached grade school, than equally impoverished children who had not had a head start.

The report did not attempt to explain the apparent failure of the program to give children a significant head start. But it pointed out as a possible cause "the generally impoverished environment to which the disadvantaged child returns after leaving the Head Start program . . ."

Basing their findings on a variety of achievement tests, the researchers concluded that "Head Start children, whether from summer or full-year programs, still appeared to be in a disadvantaged position with respect to national norms . . . of language development and scholastic achievement."

But the study did find that full-year Head Start pupils had a "significant superiority" over those who attended only summer sessions, and recommended the summer programs be converted into full - year programs.

Taxpayers Suit Filed Against City Income Tax

A taxpayer's suit was filed against Circleville's one-half per cent city income tax Monday.

Attorney Kenneth Robbins, representing John Smith of 1028 Lynnwood Ave., filed the suit in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court.

In the suit against the city, Robbins states that the council made two mistakes in passing the tax ordinance.

First, the council passed the ordinance without having it read publicly, Robbins states. The ordinance could have been passed without the three public readings only if council had suspended its rules, and this did not happen, according to the suit.

* * *

THE second grounds for challenging the ordinance is that it was passed as an amendment to a prior tax ordinance, but without stating what part of the earlier ordinance was being amended.

The city of Circleville had passed a complicated tax ordinance in Dec., 1967. After checking with a law firm specializing in city income tax laws the council passed a new ordinance. It was the passage of this second ordinance without specifying what parts of the previous ordinance were being dropped, that was incorrect, according to Robbins.

The filing of the suit against Circleville does not prohibit the city from collecting the tax this year. No restraining order has been asked or granted against the city, according to Common Pleas Judge William Ammer.

For a restraining order to be issued until the case is heard would require posting a bond by the plaintiff, John Smith. Should he lose the case he would forfeit the bond.

Considering the need of the city for money no bond of less than $400,000 would be acceptable, stated O. Charles Hosterman, city solicitor. The plaintiff is not prepared to post such a bond, Robbins stated.

It will be an estimated four to five weeks before the city will be served with the suit and be required to file an answer to the Smith petition, Robbins stated. After that time a hearing date may be requested.

Judge Ammer stated that he would ask the office of the Ohio Supreme Court to appoint another judge to hear the case. Ammer stated that as a local taxpayer he thought there might be some conflict of interest if he ruled on the case.

Floodwaters Still Surge In Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minot, N.D., was chopped in two by the rampaging Souris River today and braced for new floodwaters spilling down from Canada.

Some 2,000 to 3,000 residents were moved out Monday, joining 3,500 persons evacuated over the weekend.

Flood waters had taken eight lives in Minnesota, and damage estimates for five states exceeded $5 million.

Damage to Minot alone was estimated at $3.1 million after a 17-foot crest sent the Souris spilling into the city of 35,000 population. An expected 22-foot crest could force even more evacuations.

At Fargo, N.D., conditions were complicated by an invasion of rats forced from their lowland lairs.

Fargo high school students were dismissed from classes to help bolster the dikes as flood water covered the city's low areas.

"We have some problems we cannot solve at this time," 29-year-old Miss Ashley and Peppard, 37, said in a joint statement Monday.

They were married April 17, 1966, each for the second time, and have a son, Christian, one year old.

$62 Million Suit Filed

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Three firms were named defendants Monday in a $61,778,940 lawsuit filed by Asst. U.S. Atty. Ken Mighell.

The suit charges TCO Industries, Inc., one of its subsidiaries, and the American Express Co. with giving false values for imported buses.

Alleged in the suit are violations of U.S. Customs laws on 1,248 buses imported between 1961 and 1968.

The government demands payment of actual value of the buses at the time of importation.

The defendants claim no violation has been made.

Congress, Court Eye Antismoking Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — A verdict on the government's power to force radio and television stations to use antismoking messages could come from the Supreme Court, perhaps within the next few weeks.

While Congress contemplates new legislation, the court could guide the lawmakers by ruling on the claim that the Constitution's broad guaranty against government censorship can be used as a shield against regulation of radio-TV advertising.

The tobacco and broadcasting industries are banking heavily on 1st Amendment freedom of speech and press guarantees as they try to cut down the 1967 Federal Communications Commission rule requiring antismoking messages.

Their appeals, pending before the Court, argue that the broadcasting industry has been singled out unfairly—and unconstitutionally; that the government could never get away with this kind of regulation if it tried to apply it to newspapers, for instance.

"Are broadcasters distinguishable for 1st Amendment purposes?", the National Association of Broadcasters asks.

The tobacco manufacturers, meanwhile, have reminded the justices that they held long ago the 1st Amendment "protects the citizen not only against governmental prohibitions on what he wishes to say, but also against governmental dictation of what he must say."

The object of this spirited attack is the FCC rule that stations carrying cigarette commercials must provide "a significant amount of time for the other viewpoint"—the viewpoint that cigarette smoking can be a hazard to health.

Successful in court so far, the FCC has moved on to propose a flat ban on all cigarette commercials on radio and television—with the possible exception of cigarettes "low in tar and nicotine and related filter aspects."

The fate of this stiffer fiat probably rests as much with the Supreme Court as with Congress.

If the justices turn their backs on the broadcasters and the tobacco people, refusing even to grant them a full-dress hearing, congressional proponents of anismoking measures would be emboldened to drive ahead.

However, if the justices set the appeal down for a hearing next term, the effect likely would be to restrain the more adventurous legislators. A very real prospect of court disapproval will have been raised.

In Congress there are basically three approaches being considered: Extend the ban on FCC acion, allow it to stiffen existing regulations that require a hazardous warning label on cigarette packages or give the FCC a free hand by allowing the current curbs to expire.

It was the 1965 law requiring a health warning to cigarette-labeling that included the ban on the FCC from imposing changes any more on cigarette advertising for four years.

Some 80 Congressmen from tobacco-growing states have sponsored bills to keep the ban in effect, about a dozen of them members of the Commerce Committee.

Cigarette advertising brings in about $226.9 million annually to broadcasters, estimated to be roughly 10 per cent of their revenue.

Secret Service Arrests Ohioan With Bogus Bills

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Secret Service agents have arrested a Niles, Ohio man and charged him with possession and attempted sale of $50,000 worth of counterfeit $100 bills.

Paul Lamonge, 57, a finisher of antique furniture, was arrested Monday and admitted having a previous criminal record when he appeared before U.S. Commissioner Clifford E. Bruce. The commissioner said he would not consider a bond under $50,000.

Lamonge's case was continued and he was taken to the Cuyahoga County Jail.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Timothy J. Potts said Lamonge faces a maximum of 30 years in a federal prison if convicted.

Head Start Not Working, Solons Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress was told Monday that the federal government's Head Start program has had no appreciable success in improving the learning capabilities of impoverished grade school children.

The preliminary findings were contained in a report prepared by the Westinghouse Learning Corp., working with Ohio University, and sent to Congress by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The report found that poor children who took part in the preschool federal antipoverty program were not appreciably better off, once they reached grade school, than equally impoverished children who had not had a head start.

The report did not attempt to explain the apparent failure of the program to give children a significant head start. But it pointed out as a possible cause "the generally impoverished environment to which the disadvantaged child returns after leaving the Head Start program . . ."

Basing their findings on a variety of achievement tests, the researchers concluded that "Head Start children, whether from summer or full-year programs, still appeared to be in a disadvantaged position with respect to national norms . . . of language development and scholastic achievement."

But the study did find that full-year Head Start pupils had a "significant superiority" over those who attended only summer sessions, and recommended the summer programs be converted into full - year programs.

Taxpayers Suit Filed Against City Income Tax

A taxpayer's suit was filed against Circleville's one-half per cent city income tax Monday.

Attorney Kenneth Robbins, representing John Smith of 1028 Lynnwood Ave., filed the suit in Pickaway County Common Pleas Court.

In the suit against the city, Robbins states that the council made two mistakes in passing the tax ordinance.

First, the council passed the ordinance without having it read publicly, Robbins states. The ordinance could have been passed without the three public readings only if council had suspended its rules, and this did not happen, according to the suit.

* * *

THE second grounds for challenging the ordinance is that it was passed as an amendment to a prior tax ordinance, but without stating what part of the earlier ordinance was being amended.

The city of Circleville had passed a complicated tax ordinance in Dec., 1967. After checking with a law firm specializing in city income tax laws the council passed a new ordinance. It was the passage of this second ordinance without specifying what parts of the previous ordinance were being dropped, that was incorrect, according to Robbins.

The filing of the suit against Circleville does not prohibit the city from collecting the tax this year. No restraining order has been asked or granted against the city, according to Common Pleas Judge William Ammer.

For a restraining order to be issued until the case is heard would require posting a bond by the plaintiff, John Smith. Should he lose the case he would forfeit the bond.

Considering the need of the city for money no bond of less than $400,000 would be acceptable, stated O. Charles Hosterman, city solicitor. The plaintiff is not prepared to post such a bond, Robbins stated.

It will be an estimated four to five weeks before the city will be served with the suit and be required to file an answer to the Smith petition, Robbins stated. After that time a hearing date may be requested.

Judge Ammer stated that he would ask the office of the Ohio Supreme Court to appoint another judge to hear the case. Ammer stated that as a local taxpayer he thought there might be some conflict of interest if he ruled on the case.

Floodwaters Still Surge In Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minot, N.D., was chopped in two by the rampaging Souris River today and braced for new floodwaters spilling down from Canada.

Some 2,000 to 3,000 residents were moved out Monday, joining 3,500 persons evacuated over the weekend.

Flood waters had taken eight lives in Minnesota, and damage estimates for five states exceeded $5 million.

Damage to Minot alone was estimated at $3.1 million after a 17-foot crest sent the Souris spilling into the city of 35,000 population. An expected 22-foot crest could force even more evacuations.

At Fargo, N.D., conditions were complicated by an invasion of rats forced from their lowland lairs.

Fargo high school students were dismissed from classes to help bolster the dikes as flood water covered the city's low areas.

$62 Million Suit Filed

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Three firms were named defendants Monday in a $61,778,940 lawsuit filed by Asst. U.S. Atty. Ken Mighell.

The suit charges TCO Industries, Inc., one of its subsidiaries and the American Express Co. with giving false values for imported buses.

Alleged in the suit are violations of U.S. Customs laws on 1,248 buses imported between 1961 and 1968.

The government demands payment of actual value of the buses at the time of importation.

The defendants claim no violation has been made.

Congress, Court Eye Antismoking Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — A verdict on the government's power to force radio and television stations to use antismoking messages could come from the Supreme Court, perhaps within the next few weeks.

While Congress contemplates new legislation, the court could guide the lawmakers by ruling on the claim that the Constitution's broad guaranty against government censorship can be used as a shield against regulation of radio-TV advertising.

The tobacco and broadcasting industries are banking heavily on 1st Amendment freedom of speech and press guarantees as they try to cut down the 1967 Federal Communications Commission rule requiring antismoking messages.

Their appeals, pending before the Court, argue that the broadcasting industry has been singled out unfairly—and unconstitutionally; that the government could never get away with this kind of regulation if it tried to apply it to newspapers, for instance.

"Are broadcasters distinguishable for 1st Amendment purposes?", the National Association of Broadcasters asks.

The tobacco manufacturers, meanwhile, have reminded the justices that they held long ago the 1st Amendment "protects the citizen not only against governmental prohibitions on what he wishes to say, but also against governmental dictation of what he must say."

The object of this spirited attack is the FCC rule that stations carrying cigarette commercials must provide "a significant amount of time for the other viewpoint"—the viewpoint that cigarette smoking can be a hazard to health.

Successful in court so far, the FCC has moved on to propose a flat ban on all cigarette commercials on radio and television —for cigarettes described as "low in tar and nicotine and related filter aspects."

The fate of this stiffer fiat probably rests as much with the Supreme Court as with Congress.

If the justices turn their backs on the broadcasters and the tobacco people, refusing even to grant them a full-dress hearing, congressional proponents of antismoking measures would be emboldened to drive ahead.

However, if the justices set the appeal down for a hearing next term, the effect likely would be to restrain the more adventurous legislators. A very real prospect of court disapproval will have been raised.

In Congress there are basically three approaches being considered: Extend the ban on FCC action, allow it to stiffen existing regulations that require a hazardous warning label on cigarette packages or give the FCC a free hand by allowing the current curbs to expire.

It was the 1965 law requiring a health warning to cigarette-labeling that included the ban on the FCC from imposing changes any more on cigarette advertising for four years.

Some 80 Congressmen from tobacco-growing states have sponsored bills to keep the ban in effect, about a dozen of them members of the Commerce Committee.

Cigarette advertising brings in about $226.9 million annually to broadcasters, estimated to be roughly 10 per cent of their revenue.

Secret Service Arrests Ohioan With Bogus Bills

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Secret Service agents have arrested a Niles, Ohio, man and charged him with possession and attempted sale of $50,000 worth of counterfeit $100 bills.

Paul Lamonge, 57, a finisher of antique furniture, was arrested Monday and admitted having a previous criminal record when he appeared before U.S. Commissioner Clifford E. Bruce. The commissioner said he would not consider a bond under $50,000.

Lamonge's case was continued and he was taken to the Cuyahoga County Jail.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Timothy J. Potts said Lamonge faces a maximum of 30 years in a federal prison if convicted.

Neil Armstrong To Be 1st Man On Moon Surface

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — A civilian spaceman may make his mark in history by taking a walk.

The stroll would be on the surface of the moon, and space officials said Monday that Neil Armstrong, commander of Apollo 11, is scheduled to be the first man to make it.

George Low, director of the Apollo spacecraft program office, said Monday it was intended that Armstrong, 38, would be the first man to set foot on the earth's satellite after he and Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin, 39, land the Apollo 11 lunar module there.

If all goes according to plan, Armstrong will explore for two hours and 40 minutes, and will be joined by Aldrin several minutes after he takes the first step.

Low said the space duo would land on the moon and immediately throw the switches that would leave the module ready for an immediate launch should an emergency develop.

Then Armstrong and Aldrin will rest for four hours aboard the little craft. Low said he didn't expect either to get much sleep.

Armstrong will start the moon surface stroll by opening the lunar module hatch and descending a ladder.

One of his first acts, Low said, would be to gather a sample of moon rock, the first of 50 pounds Armstrong and Aldrin will pick up.

With the rocks safely in hand, Armstrong will test the ability of man to perform on the airless moon surface wearing a bulky space suit and handicapped by the satellite's lesser gravity.

Aldrin will join his commander and the two will gather other lunar rocks and set up a moon experiment package which will radio data back to earth for up to a year.

Near the end of the two-hour-and-40 minute period on the surface, the pair will hurry back to the safety of the lunar module.

Low said the two would be on the Lunar surface a total of 22 hours, but would spend only a fraction of that time outside the module.

During their moon walk, he said, they will get no farther than 50 to 100 feet from their craft.

Apollo 11 is planned for launch from Cape Kennedy July 16. The landing is expected on July 20.

Wilson Readies Bitter Dose For Britons

Higher Taxes, Forced Savings May Be Planned

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's embattled Labor government prepared to give the British people another bitter dose of belt-tightening austerity today.

Higher taxes, a forced savings scheme or a combination of the two were expected in the annual tax budget statement Chancellor of the Exchequer Roy Jenkins was to read in the House of Commons this afternoon. It was certain to lower the government's popularity still more.

Wilson already is faced with a divided cabinet and an irate trade union movement because of his determination to take strong measures to curb the wave of wildcat strikes hurting the export drive. There are demands for Wilson's replacement, and some union leaders are demanding a nationwide, 24-hour strike to protest the proposed curbs.

Informants said Jenkins, by means of his new budget, hoped to drain off 400 million pounds —$960 million—from British pocketbooks in order to reduce buying of foreign goods.

Imports last year sent the nation's foreign payments account plunging to a deficit of nearly $1.5 billion. The deficit averaged $87.2 million—during the first two months this year—more than $1 billion on an annual basis.

The budget today is the second from Jenkins since he became chancellor soon after Britain devalued the pound 17 months ago.

Last year's budget was the toughest in British peacetime history and siphoned off nearly one billion pounds, $2.4 billion, in purchasing power. Yet it failed to inhibit the public's spending.

Nixon Unveils Decisions About Cutbacks In Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon unveiled today more details about budget cuts said to represent "hard choice and potentially unpopular decisions." The only agency to wind up with more money is the Justice Department.

Announcing new spending figures for each agency under a revised budget calculated to produce a $5.8 billion surplus in the fiscal year starting July 1, Nixon revealed more than half of the $4 billion in reductions he is claiming come out of defense and military-aid programs and scaled down legislation to increase Social Security benefits.

The cut in planned military spending, put at $1.1 billion, was attributed largely to "lower consumption of ammunition in Vietnam," a cutback of the antiballistic missile program proposed by former President Lyndon B. Johnson and "modification" of purchases of short-range attack missiles.

Another $1 billion of the reductions was attributed to whittling down another Johnson plan —never transmitted to Congress but included in his January budget—to increase Social Security benefits.

Nixon called for a 7 per cent increase in those benefits and proposed liberalization of the retirement test so retired persons can retain their benefits while receiving increased outside earnings.

The $4 billion in claimed savings cut all across the board, although some individual programs within agencies were granted increases.

The Justice Department budget was boosted $16 million to $730 million—a reflection of Nixon's plans, yet to be spelled out, to step up anticrime measures.

In a statement, the Budget Bureau said the revisions embrace "hard decisions on priorities, important program reforms and targeted new initiatives."

"All are part of the administration's concern for the cities, for the poor and for fundamental change in the domestic program systems of the federal government," it said.

The revised budget calls for a 10 per cent increase in spending for the poor in the coming fiscal year—a boost from $24.4 billion to $26.9 billion.

The administration claimed its budget provides more actual cash assistance to the poor than Johnson had proposed in January because of removal of a freeze on aid to families with dependent children—a $307 million item.

"Hard choice and potentially unpopular decisions have not been avoided," the statement said. "Where good judgment dictated a budget reduction because we believe a program has outlived its usefulness, that decision has been made."

Draft Laws Explained

EDITOR'S NOTE: In an effort to create a greater public understanding of the laws and regulations governing the induction of personnel into the Armed Forces, the Selective Service System has prepared a series of pertinent questions and corresponding responses concerning provisions of the draft law. Here is another in the series.

Q. — Is it necessary for a registrant who has been discharged from the Armed Forces to carry a registration certificate?

A. — Yes. Within ten days of the date of separation, the registrant must request his local board to issue to him a duplicate Registration Certificate. This request can be made by a letter to his local board or on a Request for Duplicate Registration Certificate or Notice of Classification (SSS Form 6) which he may file with his own or any other local board.

Q. — Why can't a person work with the Peace Corps for two years and substitute that for his two years in the Army?

A. — Such substitution is not permissible under provisions of Section 23 of the Peace Corps Act which states: "Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law or regulation, service in the Peace Corps as a volunteer shall not in any way exempt such volunteer from the performance of any obligations or duties under the provisons of the Universal Military Training and Service Act."

Q. — Articles about college student deferments often refer to an "academic year." Please define that term.

A. — An "academic year," which is considered in determining a registrant's eligibility for deferment in Class II-S, is the 12 month period following the beginning of a registrant's course of study.

Colombian Plane Flown To Cuba After Refueling

HAVANA (AP) — A hijacked Colombian airliner landed in Havana Monday night after a stopover in Cartagena where authorities refused to refuel the plane for three hours.

The Sociedad Aeronautica de Medellin (SAM) airliner was carrying 25 passengers and four crewmen on a flight from Medellin to Barranquilla. There was no immediate word when the plane and passengers would be released.

Authorities said there were three hijackers, one of them a young man who held a knife to the pilot's throat and ordered him to fly to Cuba. The pilot replied he did not have enough fuel for the DN4 to make the 650 mile flight and would have to land at Cartagena, on the Caribbean coast of Colombia.

Squads of Colombian marines stood by near the plane while authorities debated whether to refuel the aircraft. Finally they relented.

U.S. Seeks Swiss Bank Examination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States renewed efforts today to work out an agreement with Switzerland that would give U.S. crime fighters a chance to look at the supersecret Swiss bank accounts of American gangsters.

The State Department said three days of preliminary talks opening today were another step in informal discussions begun last year when former Asst. Atty. Gen. Fred M. Vinson Jr. met in Berne with Swiss officials.

"The purpose of the conversations," said press officer Robert J. McCloskey, "is to discuss the possibility between the two governments relating to an exchange of information in criminal investigations."

Although he did not say so, the United States specifically wants a look at secret Swiss bank accounts which the government contends are used to coverup illegal activities in this country.

Witnesses before the House Banking and Currency Committee last December said U.S. account holders include gangsters, tax dodgers, loan sharks and stock market manipulators.

Taking part in the talks is Vinson's successor, Asst. Atty. Gen. Will R. Wilson, and representatives of the State Department and Securities and Exchange Commission.

Man Sentenced On 2 Counts In Muny Court

An Ashville area man charged with theft and writing bad checks entered pleas of guilty in Municipal Court Tuesday.

Tony Sciacca, 19, Route 2, Ashville, was charged with stealing gas valued at $4.20 from the Durwin Hay farm in Madison Twp. April 10. He was also charged with stealing gas and tools valued at $25 from the same farm April 7.

The third charge against Sciacca was for writing a $5 check with insufficient funds.

Sciacca had been apprehended by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Robert Hoover. Hoover had trailed Scaccia and two juveniles over a plowed field at the farm where they stole the items.

Hoover was able to use clues he found while following the three to track Sciacca to his home.

The defendant was fined $50 plus costs on the first charge against him. A fine of $1,000 plus costs and sentence of 90 days in jail was levied on the charge of stealing the gas and tools. Judge Sterling Lamb suspended 60 days of the jail sentence and placed the defendant on probation for three years.

In the case of writing the bad check, Sciacca was fined $50 plus costs and sentenced to the county jail for 90 days. The court suspended the jail sentence and $25 of the fine.

The two juveniles who allegedly assisted Sciacca were taken to the juvenile court and are still awaiting trail.

Teen Hurt In Car Mishap

A Circleville area teenager was injured in a one car accident Tuesday morning when she lost control of her car while trying to turn on the heater.

Bonita Keaton, 17, Route 3, was taken to Berger Hospital for emergency treatment of whiplash.

The car went off the left side of the road, into a ditch, returned to the pavement, went off the right side of the road and struck a fence.

No citations were issued by the sheriff's department.

Neil Armstrong To Be 1st Man On Moon Surface

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — A civilian spaceman may make his mark in history by taking a walk.

The stroll would be on the surface of the moon, and space officials said Monday that Neil Armstrong, commander of Apollo 11, is scheduled to be the first man to make it.

George Low, director of the Apollo spacecraft program office, said Monday it was intended that Armstrong, 38, would be the first man to set foot on the earth's satellite after he and Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin, 39, land the Apollo 11 lunar module there.

If all goes according to plan, Armstrong will explore for two hours and 40 minutes, and will be joined by Aldrin several minutes after he takes the first step.

Low said the space duo would land on the moon and immediately throw the switches that would leave the module ready for an immediate launch should an emergency develop.

Then Armstrong and Aldrin will rest for four hours aboard the little craft. Low said he didn't expect either to get much sleep.

Armstrong will start the moon surface stroll by opening the lunar module hatch and descending a ladder.

One of his first acts, Low said, would be to gather a sample of moon rock, the first of 50 pounds Armstrong and Aldrin will pick up.

With the rocks safely in hand, Armstrong will test the ability of man to perform on the airless moon surface wearing a bulky space suit and handicapped by the satellite's lesser gravity.

Aldrin will join his commander and the two will gather other lunar rocks and set up a moon experiment package which will radio data back to earth for up to a year.

Near the end of the two-hour-and-40 minute period on the surface, the pair will hurry back to the safety of the lunar module.

Low said the two would be on the Lunar surface a total of 22 hours, but would spend only a fraction of that time outside the module.

During their moon walk, he said, they will go no farther than 50 to 100 feet from their craft.

Apollo 11 is planned for launch from Cape Kennedy July 16. The landing is expected on July 20.

Wilson Readies Bitter Dose For Britons

Higher Taxes, Forced Savings May Be Planned

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson's embattled Labor government prepared to give the British people another bitter dose of belt-tightening austerity today.

Higher taxes, a forced savings scheme or a combination of the two were expected in the annual tax budget statement Chancellor of the Exchequer Roy Jenkins was to read in the House of Commons this afternoon. It was certain to lower the government's popularity still more.

Wilson already is faced with a divided cabinet and an irate trade union movement because of his determination to take strong measures to curb the wave of wildcat strikes hurting the export drive. There are demands for Wilson's replacement, and some union leaders are demanding a nationwide, 24-hour strike to protest the proposed curbs.

Informants said Jenkins, by means of his new budget, hoped to drain off 400 million pounds —$960 million—from British pocketbooks in order to reduce buying of foreign goods.

Imports last year sent the nation's foreign payments account plunging to a deficit of nearly $1.5 billion. The deficit averaged $87.2 million—during the first two months this year—more than $1 billion on an annual basis.

The budget today is the second from Jenkins since he became chancellor soon after Britain devalued the pound 17 months ago.

Last year's budget was the toughest in British peacetime history and siphoned off nearly one billion pounds, $2.4 billion in purchasing power. Yet it failed to inhibit the public's spending.

Nixon Unveils Decisions About Cutbacks In Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon unveiled today more details about budget cuts said to represent "hard choice and potentially unpopular decisions." The only agency to wind up with more money is the Justice Department.

Announcing new spending figures for each agency under a revised budget calculated to produce a $5.8 billion surplus in the fiscal year starting July 1, Nixon revealed more than half of the $4 billion in reductions he is claiming come out of defense and military-aid programs and scaled down legislation to increase Social Security benefits.

The cut in planned military spending, put at $1.1 billion, was attributed largely to "lower consumption of ammunition in Vietnam," a cutback of the antiballistic missile program proposed by former President Lyndon B. Johnson and "modification" of purchases of short-range attack missiles.

Another $1 billion of the reductions was attributed to whittling down another Johnson plan —never transmitted to Congress but included in his January budget—to increase Social Security benefits.

Nixon called for a 7 per cent increase in those benefits and proposed liberalization of the retirement test so retired persons can retain their benefits while receiving increased outside earnings.

The $4 billion in claimed savings cut all across the board, although some individual programs within agencies were granted increases.

The Justice Department budget was boosted $16 million to $730 million—a reflection of Nixon's plans, yet to be spelled out, to step up anticrime measures.

In a statement, the Budget Bureau said the revisions embrace "hard decisions on priorities, important program reforms and targeted new initiatives."

"All are part of the administration's concern for the cities, for the poor and for fundamental change in the domestic program systems of the federal government," it said.

The revised budget calls for a 10 per cent increase in spending for the poor in the coming fiscal year—a boost from $24.4 billion to $26.9 billion.

The administration claimed its budget provides more actual cash assistance to the poor than Johnson had proposed in January because of removal of a freeze on aid to families with dependent children—a $307 million item.

"Hard choice and potentially unpopular decisions have not been avoided," the statement said. "Where good judgment dictated a budget reduction because we believe a program has outlived its usefulness, that decision has been made."

Draft Laws Explained

EDITOR'S NOTE: In an effort to create a greater public understanding of the laws and regulations governing the induction of personnel into the Armed Forces, the Selective Service System has prepared a series of pertinent questions and corresponding responses concerning provisions of the draft law. Here is another in the series.

Q. — Is it necessary for a registrant who has been discharged from the Armed Forces to carry a registration certificate?

A. — Yes. Within ten days of the date of separation, the registrant must request his local board to issue to him a duplicate Registration Certificate. This request can be made by a letter to his local board or on a Request for Duplicate Registration Certificate or Notice of Classification (SSS Form 6) which he may file with his own or any other local board.

Q. — Why can't a person work with the Peace Corps for two years and substitute that for two years in the Army?

A. — Such substitution is not permissible under provisions of Section 23 of the Peace Corps Act which states: "Notwithstanding the provisions of any other law or regulation, service in the Peace Corps as a volunteer shall not in any way exempt such volunteer from the performance of any obligations or duties under the provisons of the Universal Military Training and Service Act."

Q. — Articles about college student deferments often refer to an "academic year." Please define that term.

A. — An "academic year," which is considered in determining a registrant's eligibility for deferment in Class II-S, is the 12 month period following the beginning of a registrant's course of study.

Colombian Plane Flown To Cuba After Refueling

HAVANA (AP) — A hijacked Colombian airliner landed in Havana Monday night after a stopover in Cartagena where authorities refused to refuel the plane for three hours.

The Sociedad Aeronautica de Medellin (SAM) airliner was carrying 25 passengers and four crewmen on a flight from Medellin to Barranquilla. There was no immediate word when the plane and passengers would be released.

Authorities said there were three hijackers, one of them a young man who held a knife to the pilot's throat and ordered him to fly to Cuba. The pilot replied he did not have enough fuel for the DN4 to make the 650 mile flight and would have to land at Cartagena, on the Caribbean coast of Colombia.

Squads of Colombian marines stood by near the plane while authorities debated whether to refuel the aircraft. Finally they relented.

Man Sentenced On 2 Counts In Muny Court

An Ashville area man charged with theft and writing bad checks entered pleas of guilty in Municipal Court Tuesday.

Tony Sciacca, 19, Route 2, Ashville, was charged with stealing gas valued at $4.20 from the Durwin Hay farm in Madison Twp. April 10. He was also charged with stealing gas and tools valued at $25 from the same farm April 7.

The third charge against Sciacca was for writing a $5 check with insufficient funds.

Sciacca had been apprehended by Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Robert Hoover. Hoover had trailed Sciacca and two juveniles over a plowed field at the farm where they stole the items.

Hoover was able to use clues he found while following the three to track Sciacca to his home.

The defendant was fined $50 plus costs on the first charge against him. A fine of $1,000 plus costs and sentence of 90 days in jail was levied on the charge of stealing the gas and tools. Judge Sterling Lamb suspended 60 days of the jail sentence and placed the defendant on probation for three years.

In the case of writing the bad check, Sciacca was fined $50 plus costs and sentenced to the county jail for 90 days. The court suspended the jail sentence and $25 of the fine.

The two juveniles who allegedly assisted Sciacca were taken to the juvenile court and are still awaiting trial.

U.S. Seeks Swiss Bank Examination

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States renewed efforts today to work out an agreement with Switzerland that would give U.S. crime fighters a chance to look at the supersecret Swiss bank accounts of American gangsters.

The State Department said three days of preliminary talks opening today were another step in informal discussions begun last year when former Asst. Atty. Gen. Fred M. Vinson Jr. met in Berne with Swiss officials.

"The purpose of the conversations," said press officer Robert J. McCloskey, "is to discuss the possibility between the two governments relating to an exchange of information in criminal investigations."

Although he did not say so, the United States specifically wants a look at secret Swiss bank accounts which the government contends are used to coverup illegal activities in this country.

Witnesses before the House Banking and Currency Committee last December said U.S. account holders include gangsters, tax dodgers, loan sharks and stock market manipulators.

Taking part in the talks is Vinson's successor, Asst. Atty. Gen. Will R. Wilson, and representatives of the State Department and Securities and Exchange Commission.

Teen Hurt In Car Mishap

A Circleville area teenager was injured in a one car accident Tuesday morning when she lost control of her car while trying to turn on the heater.

Bonita Keaton, 17, Route 3, was taken to Berger Hospital for emergency treatment of whiplash.

Miss Keaton told Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Donald Thompson that she was southbound on County Road 511 near the intersection of Marshall Road about 7:35 a.m. when she leaned forward to turn on the heater, and lost control of her car.

The car went off the left side of the road, into a ditch, returned to the pavement, went off the right side of the road and struck a fence.

No citations were issued by the sheriff's department.

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The difference between Monday night's Oscar Awards ceremonies on ABC and the ones that preceded it on television was that they finally presented awards as a show instead of a news event.

But even if the new production team was able to inject some form and shape to the motion picture industry's annual big blast, its very nature and purpose still makes it unwieldy in TV terms.

This time out there were 10 top film stars economically opening the envelopes without the usual palaver and endless entrances and exits of celebrities. Heartfelt speeches of thanks were kept to a blessed minimum, although a few recipients still insisted on mentioning everyone but their bookies and dentists.

There were also rehearsed and entertaining bits between the presentation ceremonies. The costume design award, for instance, was preceded by a series of brief dance numbers in which performers modeled clothes that won nominations.

There were some comedy numbers, too, including one in which five very important women stars lined up and ruefully complained about the shortage of parts for mature actresses—and then handed the Oscar to Sir Carol Reed for directing "Oliver," which won the Lion's share of statuettes including top prize for best film.

Bob Hope had a funny, pseudo-bitter monologue before presenting the Jean Hersholt Humanitarian award to Martha Raye, obviously a popular decision by the academy board of directors.

Paula Kelly starred with the UCLA marching band in a bright dance-marching production number built around one of the nominated songs.

Critical reception of the show ought to be better than usual, although as far as the general public is concerned it always is one of the most popular programs of the year. Even so, the audience can still get pretty bored by those technical awards and meandering acceptance speeches. And viewers may have missed the usual chance to look over masses of celebrities —for the first time the famous faces in the audience played a very small part in the proceedings.

It should be noted, that the show went on and went off precisely on time.

Almost as much fun as rooting a favorite home team is l o o k i n g over the women's clothes on Oscar nights. Several of the women wore pants suits—Rosalind Russell, Jane Fonda and Barbra Streisand.

Neither Miss Hepburn nor Cliff Robertson—winner of the best actor Oscar—was on hand to accept the award.

Earlier on the same network Carol Channing worked successfully with Carol Burnett and Danny Thomas in a special. The theme was the musical and comedy treatment of the seven deadly sins—pride, envy, gluttony, etc.—which provided a merry foundation. The entire program had a pleasant atmosphere about it although occasionally the lyrics and the jokes were pretty earthy.

NBC's contribution to the evening was a noisy rock special starring the Monkees. It was a bit hard on the ears, but it was a remarkable collection of ingenious optical effects and camera tricks, most of which were bizarre and highly effective.

The hour was obviously designed for the teen-age audience—the clue was the sound track filled with those shrill youthful squeals that for some reason haven't been heard much on TV lately.

Superstructure Of Cincy Bridge To Be Replaced

CINCINNATI (AP) — The C & O Bridge, closed because it was judged hazardous, will be replaced by a new superstructure on existing piers, and a separate, new bridge—possibly two.

That was the decision from Kentucky and Ohio highway officials Monday who discarded suggestions to r e n o v a t e the span linking Cincinnati and Covington, Ky., across the Ohio River.

But new construction w i l l have to be approved by both the Coast Guard and Federal Bureau of Public Roads.

Meeting in a session closed to newsmen, the state officials decided to build a two-lane superstructure on the C & O's piers at a cost of $6.5 to $7 million and erect a two-lane span upstream for about $14 million. The state of Kentucky is also going to look into whether federal funds would be available for another bridge—a four-laner for about $20 million.

Disclose Breast Feeding Cuts Incidence Of Cancer

OTTAWA (AP) — Canadian Eskimo women have supplanted Japanese as having the world's lowest incidence of breast cancer, and a Canadian medical specialist attributes this to breast feeding.

Dr. Otto Schaefer of the Northern Medical Research Unit of Edmonton's Charles Camsell Hospital said Canadian Eskimos traditionally nurse a child three or more years, and the mothers are usually in continuous lactation from age 17 to 50.

A 15-year medical study of the Canadian Eskimo population, which increased from less than 9,000 to more than 13,000 in that time, turned up only one case of breast cancer—a 40-year-old woman who nursed seven of her 10 children for less than the normal period.

In Japan and among Greenland Eskimos, said Schaefer, breast feeding had declined in populariy and as a result he said, the incidence of breast cancer is increasing. Japan's mortality from breast cancer almost doubled between 1910 and 1959, he said.

Schaefer didn't rule out heredity as a cause of breast cancer, but added: "The common contributing factor appears to be either the decrease in the duration of breast feeding or its complete elimination—a result of assimilation by Western culture."

Ministers Better Than Doctors?

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Some mental illnesses can be treated better by ministers than by psychiatrists, Dr. Karl Menninger, says.

"Some of the people we work with don't belong to psychiatry, they belong to a pastor," said the 76-year-old psychiatrist and cofounder of the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kan. "These are the ones who know they're doing wrong."

"When people come to a minister for help, they take the responsibility for their misbehavior, but when they come to a psychiatrist they often try to shove it off upon him." Menninger said in a lecture at the Princeton Theological Seminary.

Galion Woman Forms Protest Group On Taxes

GALION, Ohio (AP) — "We are sick of the wealthy man who can afford expert tax lawyers, getting him off scot free," says Mary E. Ginn in explaining why a group of Galion women is conducting a petition campaign for tax reforms.

"We don't belong to any rebel or controversial group . . . we just want a fair tax structure for middle class people," Mrs. Ginn said.

The middle class group of wage e a r n e r s should revolt against income tax, Mrs. Ginn said, not because of the level or amount they must pay, but because certain provisions of the tax laws such as tax write-offs and special interest loopholes unfairly lighten the burden of others who can afford to pay.

The group sent one petition containing more than 2,600 signatures to Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio. The women are circulating another petition and hope to get 5,000 additional signatures.

Penn Central Seeks Cuts

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Penn Central railroad officials told an Interstate Commerce Commission examiner that a 50 per cent passenger drop and a $1,750,000 operating deficit in 1968 are the reasons for consolidation of four passenger trains into two.

Penn Central seeks to discontinue two trains, the westbound Penn Texas and the eastbound Spirit of St. Louis. The railroad seeks to consolidate traffic to two other trains, the westbound Spirit of St. Louis and the eastbound Penn Texas.

Under the consolidation schedule, the trains would leave New York at 4:05 p.m. daily and arrive in St. Louis t h e next day at 12:50 p.m. they would depart St. Louis at 11:10 a.m. daily and arrive in New York the next day at 9:15 a.m.

Penn Central attorney Donald A. Brinkworth told the commission that the consolidated service would reduce the railroad's operating loss by more than $2 million annually.

The trains make intermediate stops at Effingham, Indianapolis, Richmond, Ind., Dayton and Columbus, O., and points east.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Curly Blocker was trapped in a freight elevator for 14 hours with a camper truck and a camel named Sandy.

It happened this way:

The camel arrived by freighter from Australia and Blocker, an animal handler, was told to take it from the sixth floor of Los Angeles Harbor. So he drove the truck into the elevator, ran it to the sixth floor, loaded Sandy in the truck and pushed the down button.

The elevator dropped six feet and jammed. Blocker had to wait 14 hours for the elevator to be repaired since he couldn't figure out how to get the camel through the eye of a six-inch opening.

Disclose Breast Feeding Cuts Incidence Of Cancer

OTTAWA (AP) — Canadian Eskimo women have supplanted Japanese as having the world's lowest incidence of breast cancer, and a Canadian medical specialist attributes this to breast feeding.

Dr. Otto Schaefer of the Northern Medical Research Unit of Edmonton's Charles Camsell Hospital said Canadian Eskimos traditionally nurse a child three or more years, and the mothers are usually in continuous lactation from age 17 to 50.

A 15-year medical study of the Canadian Eskimo population, which increased from less than 9,000 to more than 13,000 in that time, turned up only one case of breast cancer—a 40-year-old woman who nursed seven of her 10 children for less than the normal period.

In Japan and among Greenland Eskimos, said Schaefer, breast feeding had declined in populariy and as a result he said, the incidence of breast cancer is increasing. Japan's mortality from breast cancer almost doubled between 1910 and 1950, he said.

Schaefer didn't rule out heredity as a cause of breast cancer, but added: "The common contributing factor appears to be either the decrease in the duration of breast feeding or its complete elimination—a result of assimilation by Western culture."

Galion Woman Forms Protest Group On Taxes

GALION, Ohio (AP) — "We are sick of the wealthy man who can afford expert tax lawyers, getting him off scot free," says Mary E. Ginn in explaining why a group of Galion women is conducting a petition campaign for tax reforms.

"We don't belong to any rebel or controversial group . . . we just want a fair tax structure for middle class people," Mrs. Ginn said.

The middle class group of wage earners should revolt against income tax, Mrs. Ginn said, not because of the level or amount they must pay, but because certain provisions of the tax laws such as tax write-offs and special interest loopholes unfairly lighten the burden of others who can afford to pay.

The group sent one petition containing more than 2,000 signatures to Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio. The women are circulating another petition and hope to get 5,000 additional signatures.

Ministers Better Than Doctors?

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Some mental illnesses can be treated better by ministers than by psychiatrists, Dr. Karl Menninger, says.

"Some of the people we work with don't belong to psychiatry, they belong to a pastor," said the 76-year-old psychiatrist and cofounder of the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kan. "These are the ones who know they're doing wrong."

"When people come to a minister for help, they take the responsibility for their misbehavior, but when they come to a psychiatrist they often try to shove it off upon him," Menninger said in a lecture at the Princeton Theological Seminary.

Penn Central Seeks Cuts

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Penn Central railroad officials told an Interstate Commerce Commission examiner that a 50 per cent passenger drop and a $1,750,000 operating deficit in 1968 are the reasons for consolidation of four passenger trains into two.

Penn Central seeks to discontinue two trains, the westbound Penn Texas and the eastbound Spirit of St. Louis. The railroad seeks to consolidate traffic to two other trains, the westbound Spirit of St. Louis and the eastbound Penn Texas.

Under the consolidation schedule, the trains would leave New York at 4:05 p.m. daily and arrive in St. Louis the next day at 12:50 p.m. they would depart St. Louis at 11:10 a.m. daily and arrive in New York the next day at 9:15 a.m.

Penn Central attorney Donald A. Brinkworth told the commission that the consolidated service would reduce the railroad's operating loss by more than $2 million annually.

The trains make intermediate stops at Effingham, Indianapolis, Richmond, Ind., Dayton and Columbus, O., and points east.

Views on Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The difference between Monday night's Oscar Awards ceremonies on ABC and the ones that preceded it on television was that they finally presented awards as a show instead of a news event.

But even if the new production team was able to inject some form and shape to the motion picture industry's annual big blast, its very nature and purpose still makes it unwieldy in TV terms.

This time out there were 10 top film stars economically opening the envelopes without the usual palaver and endless entrances and exits of celebrities. Heartfelt speeches of thanks were kept to a blessed minimum, although a few recipients still insisted on mentioning everyone but their bookies and dentists.

There were also rehearsed and entertaining bits between the presentation ceremonies. The costume design award, for instance, was preceded by a series of brief dance numbers in which performers modeled clothes that won nominations.

There were some comedy numbers, too, including one in which five very important women stars lined up and ruefully complained about the shortage of parts for mature actresses—and then handed the Oscar to Sir Carol Reed for directing "Oliver," which won the Lion's share of statuettes including top prize for best film.

Bob Hope had a funny, pseudo-bitter monologue before presenting the Jean Hersholt Humanitarian award to Martha Raye, obviously a popular decision by the academy board of directors.

Paula Kelly starred with the UCLA marching band in a bright dance-marching production number built around one of the nominated songs.

Critical reception of the show ought to be better than usual, although as far as the general public is concerned it always is one of the most popular programs of the year. Even so, the audience can still get pretty bored by those technical awards and meandering acceptance speeches. And viewers may have missed the usual chance to look over masses of celebrities—for the first time the famous faces in the audience played a very small part in the proceedings.

It should be noted, that the show went on and went off precisely on time.

Almost as much fun as rooting a favorite home team is looking over the women's clothes on Oscar nights. Several of the women wore pants suits—Rosalind Russell, Jane Fonda and Barbra Streisand.

Neither Miss Hepburn nor Cliff Robertson—winner of the best actor Oscar—was on hand to accept the award.

Earlier on the same network Carol Channing worked successfully with Carol Burnett and Danny Thomas in a special. The theme was the musical and comedy treatment of the seven deadly sins—pride, envy, gluttony, etc.—which provided a merry foundation. The entire program had a pleasant atmosphere about it although occasionally the lyrics and the jokes were pretty earthy.

NBC's contribution to the evening was a noisy rock special starring the Monkees. It was a bit hard on the ears, but it was a remarkable collection of ingenious optical effects and camera tricks, most of which were bizarre and highly effective.

The hour was obviously designed for the teen-age audience—the clue was the sound track filled with those shrill youthful squeals that for some reason haven't been heard much on TV lately.

Superstructure Of Cincy Bridge To Be Replaced

CINCINNATI (AP) — The C & O Bridge, closed because it was judged hazardous, will be replaced by a new superstructure on existing piers, and a separate, new bridge—possibly two.

That was the decision from Kentucky and Ohio highway officials Monday who discarded suggestions to renovate the span linking Cincinnati and Covington, Ky., across the Ohio River.

But new construction will have to be approved by both the Coast Guard and Federal Bureau of Public Roads.

Meeting in a session closed to newsmen, the state officials decided to build a two-lane superstructure on the C & O's piers at a cost of $6.5 to $7 million and erect a two-lane span upstream for about $14 million. The state of Kentucky is also going to look into whether federal funds would be available for another bridge—a four-laner for about $20 million.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Some of the more established franchise operators are casting a critical eye on the current rash of celebrity-promoted fast food or quick service restaurants.

"It's reached the point of ridiculousness," says Ray Kroc, chairman of the McDonald's hamburger chain of more than 1,000 units. "It's prostitution."

Says the less critical Robert Rosenberg of Dunkin' Donuts, "A name doesn't overcome a bad operation."

Other attitudes range from concern to tolerance to good wishes as athletes, entertainers, singers and others try their hand at food — the promoting, not the cooking of it.

Typically, the fast food franchiser is a company with a product, a marketing plan and other assets which, for a fee, grants license to a retail outlet —the franchisee—and collects a percentage of the profits.

The franchiser sometimes raises cash through a public offering of stock in order to sell equipment and a beginning inventory to the franchisee.

Many of the celebrities have only part-time roles in the companies using their names, their primary jobs being to keep the products publicized, perhaps attend openings, and collect royalties. Others, however, hold executive positions.

Some, such as cartoon characters, play only passive roles or none at all except to suggest that their own wholesomeness somehow is transferred to the food promoted and sold by their names.

Joe Namath, Mickey Mantle, Johnny Carson, Tony Bennett, Bill Cosby, Cassius Clay, Minnie Pearl, Eddie Arnold, Rocky Graziano, Eddie Arcaro, Mahalia Jackson and more are among those who recently have lent their names.

Among the most outspoken critics is Kroc, who says he learned the business of selling hamburgers by working over a hot grill. He commented in an interview:

"Some of these celebrities are merely front men. If the operation succeeds they become more popular. If it fails they have no personal liability."

In many cases this might be true, even though some celebrities do stand to suffer damage to their names.

Thomas Robinson, executive director of the International Franchise Association, which lists among its 270 members many of the big name franchisers, was asked if he saw dangers in the celebrity franchising techniques.

"If the companies are proper and sound and have a real franchise program to offer there is no danger," he said.

'But we see a real danger to the franchisee and the investing public when an operation with no tangible assets raises millions in a stock offering. We're afraid that this may fall on everyone's head and hurt sound franchisers."

Although it is unlikely that much money has been raised on name alone, several franchisers have convinced the investing public literally to bet on their future—to put up money for equipment and signs to begin with.

Rosenberg, president of the long established, 350-unit Dunkin' chain, views the situation cooly, but he too wonders about the chances for success of celebrity franchisers.

"Fifty per cent of all small businesses fail within two years," he said. "It is increasingly more difficult for independent businessmen to go into business. There are so many areas in which they must have expertise."

In franchising, he said, "You have to have sophisticated marketing, budgeting experience, quality control, acceptable equipment, a good program. Some managements might not be able to put these together."

Robert Grover, president of Snap-on Tools Corp., a franchiser incorporated 39 years ago, commented when questioned:

"Anonymity: this is the way to run a business. There is nothing wrong in an advertising gimmick such as a celebrity. But," he asked pointedly, "how do they transmit their wisdom?"

He added: "I'm not sure how well they'll work. I wish them the best. But if they fail they could blacken other franchisers. It could happen. I don't want to see franchising abused."

WASHINGTON MEMO

By Congressman
CHALMERS P. WYLIE
15th District of Ohio

The subject on which we received more letters last week than any other concerned a report that the Department of the Army had issued an order which would prohibit the use of the word "God" in the Character Guidance Programs conducted by the Army. All of your letters protested any such action. I felt as the constituents who wrote and sent the protests of my correspondents along with my own protest to the Secretary of Defense and the Department of the Army.

Secretary Melvin Laird on April 3 issued a statement in which he said "I want to state that there will be no prohibition against the use of "God" "Supreme Being," "Creator," "faith," "spiritual values" or similar words. References to these terms are appropriate for inclusion in the Character Guidance Program."

Similar letters came in from all over the United States. the quick action of the Secretary of Defense indicates once again the influence of letters from those we represent.

The Committee on Post Office and Civil Service's Subcommittee on Census and Statistics will continue to hear testimony next week from the Director of the Bureau of the Census on the topic of the 1970 Census questions.

I have received much constituent mail on this subject, and I am in accord with the principle of restricting any questions that violate the right of privacy. I will keep you informed on this matter.

Last week the Supreme Court held it to be all right for a union to fine members for exceeding a union-imposed output quota. In the decision the Supreme Court said that a union is free to restrain workers from being energetic and ambitious, and if ambitious workers are frustrated by union ceiling on production lines, they are "free to leave the union."

Ohio State University received two more grants this week -- one was a National Science Foundation grant and the other was a 100,000 project grant to train teachers in adult basic education curriculum.

The very important Elementary and Secondary Education Act will be considered this week. It extends the present law for an additional five years for a total authorization of 4 billion per year with an additional amendment providing for added funds for impacted school districts. Payments would now include children of families living in federally supported public housing units.

Title I provides a program of grants to local school districts distributed on the basis of certain poverty criteria, including the number of families with under 2,000 per year income. Title II includes grants to states for the purchase of instructional material — film, film libraries, books, etc. Title III is a program of grants for educational centers, educational research, and vocational technical schools. There are other titles which would include aid to the handicapped and bi-lingual language programs.

Another bill which has received considerable public attention and will be important is one pertaining to the matter of water pollution. It provides for actions to be taken in the case of pollution of navigable waters through the discharge of oil and other material where there is a pollution hazard; for the control of sewage from marine vessels and for mine acid pollution. It establishes grants for training of personnel in the field of water pollution and authorized the award.

A section of the bill which is of particular interest to Ohio would authorize grants and contracts for the prevention, removal and control of lake pollution. Lake Erie is one of those frequently mentioned in this connection. Again, because of the tremendous need for such legislation, this bill will probably pass without too much difficulty.

Available from my office are the following Health, Education, and Welfare publications: "The Child Who is Hard of Hearing," "The Child with a Speech Problem," "The Care of the Retarded Child," and "The Mentally Retarded Child — A Guide to Services of Social Agencies." Anyone desirous of receiving any or all of these booklets should address a request to me at: 1331 Longworth HOB, Washington, D. C. 20515.

Ohio May Face Spending Curbs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. James A. Rhodes said Monday he may be forced to implement new "drastic" measures to maintain a balanced budget for the state.

He asked Finance Director Howard L. Collier to review the state's fiscal situation, saying that "economic uncertainties of the time demand that the stae of Ohio re-evaluae and inventory its financial position so that we may determine what we must do to maintain a balanced budget."

Rhodes said it may be necessary to curtail state expenses by such measures as a freeze on the hiring of state personnel, layoffs in some departments, delay of some state capital improvement projects and readjustment of state programs.

THE CAGEY vice-president of a company listed on the big board has added a red telephone to the two black ones on his desk. It's a direct line to the company president, he explains, and it's red to remind him not to use the same tone of voice he uses on his other phones.

A golf pro reluctantly agreed to play a round with the club's most incurable hacker, after being promised double his usual charge. The hacker, ever hopeful, teed up on a 3-par hole, waved his 8-iron menacingly eight or nine times, closed his eyes, and lunged for the ball. It sailed off far to the right of the green, hit a tree, bounced off a boulder, nearly decapitated an outraged member on an adjoining fairway, hit another tree, then, miraculously, dribbled on to the green and trickled into the cup for a hole in one!

The hacker threw his club jubilantly into the air and cried to the pro, "Gimme another ball, Jack! I think I've got the idea now!"

In a college history class a notoriously dilatory student was asked to name the date on which the Thirty Years War ended. After a considerable pause, the student declared, "1648." "Correct," rasped the professor, "but unless my ears deceive me, I distinctly heard that date whispered to you from the rear of the room." "Your ears didn't deceive you, Professor," the student told him solemnly. "This was just one more instance of history repeating itself."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The statistics are almost terrifying about the frequency with which young high school girls and boys in small and large cities all over America are being tempted to take drugs. "Goof Balls," a slang expression for barbiturates, are easily purchased from illicit, immoral peddlers who in many instances are students. These "pushers" can, in this way, supply their own demands and frequently they are responsible for starting the dependent feeling in their classmates. These sleeping pills can produce a sense of drowsiness which should alert teachers and parents to the fact that the child may be "on" something.

The same peddlers of "goof balls" also peddle "pep pills" or amphetamines, which help to keep drowsy students awake. Before long, these youngsters taking barbiturates are caught in a trap of sleepiness to escape reality, only to be followed by the pep pills to keep awake.

The use and abuse of these drugs is exceedingly dangerous because of the body harm and personality changes they can induce. It is an admitted fact that "goof ball" and "pep pill" users are on the lowest rung of a ladder that leads to marijuana and then frequently to hard narcotic addiction.

Not until sever punishment is meted out to those immoral people who make these drugs available can disaster be avoided in our young children. LSD, and any of these escapist drugs, are as easily purchased as a carbonated drink. Parents must be on the alert for any change of behavior if addiction to any drug is to be interrupted before it permanently sets in.

Cirrhosis of the liver is one of the major penalties paid by people who drink large quantities of alcohol over an extended period of time. It must be stated that cirrhosis is not limited to the alcoholic. Alcoholism is a disease that is no differest from a chronic lung condition or diabetes.

Cirrhosis is a degenerative process by which the liver cells are destroyed and replaced by functionless scar tissue. Since the liver plays a most important role in taking toxic substances out of the blood, permanent damage to it does insurmountable damage to the rest of the body organs. There are, of course, other causes of cirrhosis but undoubtedly alcohol is the major contributor. Obstruction of the outflow of bile, chronic infections, hepatitis and some toxic metals may also cause cirrhosis.

There is no guesswork about this disease. People may think they have cirrhosis but not until a complete series of tests are done on the liver, a so-called "liver profile," can the exact condition be determined.

One of the most gratifying advances in medicine is that liver transplants and other operations are now available to people with advanced cirrhosis. Successful as these operations can be, it is to the prevention of this disorder that energies should be devoted.

Military-Industry Complex

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

With billions in defense contracts going out to manufacturers from the Pentagon, it is easy to see why there should be considerable worry about the influence of the "military-industrial complex." But, from the available evidence, I would hate to predict any specific political effect from the big money spent on the ABM system.

There was simply no correlation between the way the votes in the 1968 election went and the Pentagon disbursements. The states getting the big money — in excess of a billion each, with California receiving $6.6 billion, and Texas and New York getting, respectively, $3.5 and $3.2 billion — were twelve in number. California went for Nixon (though electing a peacenik Senator Alan Cranston over Max Rafferty, who never hesitates to exalt patriotism). Texas and New York both favored Hubert Humphrey. New Jersey, Missouri, Illinois and Ohio, all in the billion dollar group, were Republican; Michigan, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Connecticut, also billion dollar club members, remained Democratic. Georgia, capacity to help this nation the only state in the Southeast on the billion list, was for George Wallace.

So the votes that might have been effected by the spending of the biggest defense money betray no particular sensitivity to Washington in ways that could be charted for the edification of political scientists.

Senator William Proxmire, Wisconsin Democrat, is very much perturbed by the fact that the Boeing Company of Seattle and General Dynamics of Texas hire retired military officers who happen to have Pentagon connections. But the number of admirals, generals and ex-aviation officers spotted around in our defense industries is so numerous that they must neutralize each other in their scramble to get undue favoritism, if that is indeed what they do. There must be a high safety factor in the numbers involved; if General Dynamics were getting away with something, Boeing would certainly hear about it.

It is alleged to be terrible that General Electric, Bell Telephone, the Radio Corporation of America and Sperry Rand will probably make money from the ABM. But not one of these companies has stood out of line to make propaganda either for or against the Sentinel or Safeguard ABM defense system, or whatever. GE holds a "guaranteed annual luncheon" once a year for columnists, but it does so to acquaint them with its labor policies. No GE man ever told me it is his company that makes the radar to track incoming atomic warheads. But somehow I feel more comfortable that GE has the defend itself.

The fact is that we, as a nation with something of a stake in its continuing existence as a democracy, ought to be thankful that we have an effective "military-industrial complex." If we didn't have aero-space companies such as Martin-Marietta and McDonnell-Douglas, which continue to do advanced rocket research; or United Aircraft and Bell to push helicopter development; or the Electric Boat division of General Dynamics to work on atomic submarines; or all those various electronic companies that dot Route 128 around Boston, and are spotted all over the landscape of southern California, we'd be as vulnerable as a lost lamb in a forest of predators.

We may have a "military-industrial complex," but it is only part of our industry, which also happens to make nine million motor vehicles for the civilian market each year and gives us such things as computers, motor boats, refrigerators and TV. The Soviet system, on the other hand, is, save for its inefficient agriculture, a military-industrial complex and little else. If we sterilized all our companies that do Pentagon business, we'd be reading an ultimatum from Moscow tomorrow and it wouldn't be very nice.

So, while I'm just as anxious to save tax money as the next person, I am not going to join the hue and cry about the "military-industrial complex" unless Secretary of Defense Melvin Robert Laird is suddenly proved to be a dishonorable fellow. Knowing his record, I don't expect that to happen.

California Cops Set To Monitor Automobile Noise

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A team of California highway patrolmen starts today measuring the noise of automobiles zipping along the highways to determine if they are violating the State Code.

It limits sound to a maximum of 82 to 92 decibels, depending on the type of car or truck and speed limits. Officers say most passenger cars will be limited to 82 decibels, about the noise from a pneumatic drill.

Officers said citations or warnings would be issued to the drivers of cars exceeding the limit.

The patrolmen are using a shoebox-sized meter with a cable to a microphone on a four-foot-high tripod placed 50 feet from the center of the right-hand lane. To start, the team is operating in Los Angeles, Ventura and Orange Counties.

Red China Adopts New Constitution

TOKYO (AP) — The Chinese Communist party adopted Monday a new constitution based on Mao Tse-tung's philosophy and naming Lin Piao as Mao's heir as ruler of China, a Peking broadcast said.

The broadcast by the New China (Hsinhua) News Agency said the Communist party congress, which opened April 1 in Peking, held a plenary session today after nearly two weeks of small group discussions. It did not say how much longer the congress would continue.

Bishop Pike Leaves Organized Church

NEW YORK (AP) — Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike announced Monday that he and his third wife are leaving the organized Christian church. He said they plan to help establish a center for "reorientation of persons in religious transition."

Pike, 56, a minister for 25 years and a bishop since 1958, announced the decision in an article in Look Magazine.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Some of the more established franchise operators are casting a critical eye on the current rash of celebrity-promoted fast food or quick service restaurants.

"It's reached the point of ridiculousness," says Ray Kroc, chairman of the McDonald's hamburger chain of more than 1,000 units. "It's prostitution."

Says the less critical Robert Rosenberg of Dunkin' Donuts, "A name doesn't overcome a bad operation."

Other attitudes range from concern to tolerance to good wishes as athletes, entertainers, singers and others try their hand at food — the promoting, not the cooking of it.

Typically, the fast food franchiser is a company with a product, a marketing plan and other assets which, for a fee, grants license to a retail outlet —the franchisee—and collects a percentage of the profits.

The franchiser sometimes raises cash through a public offering of stock in order to sell equipment and a beginning inventory to the franchisee.

Many of the celebrities have only part-time roles in the companies using their names, their primary jobs being to keep the products publicized, perhaps attend openings, and collect royalties. Others, however, hold executive positions.

Some, such as cartoon characters, play only passive roles or none at all except to suggest that their own wholesomeness somehow is transferred to the food promoted and sold by their names.

Joe Namath, Mickey Mantle, Johnny Carson, Tony Bennett, Bill Cosby, Cassius Clay, Minnie Pearl, Eddie Arnold, Rocky Graziano, Eddie Arcaro, Mahalia Jackson and more are among those who recently have lent their names.

Among the most outspoken critics is Kroc, who says he learned the business of selling hamburgers by working over a hot grill. He commented in an interview:

"Some of these celebrities are merely front men. If the operation succeeds they become more popular. If it fails they have no personal liability."

In many cases this might be true, even though some celebrities do stand to suffer damage to their names.

Thomas Robinson, executive director of the International Franchise Association, which lists among its 270 members many of the big name franchisers, was asked if he saw dangers in the celebrity franchising techniques.

"If the companies are proper and sound and have a real franchise program to offer there is no danger," he said.

'But we see a real danger to the franchisee and the investing public when an operation with no tangible assets raises millions in a stock offering. We're afraid that this may fall on everyone's head and hurt sound franchisers."

Although it is unlikely that much money has been raised on name alone, several franchisers have convinced the investing public literally to bet on their future—to put up money for equipment and signs to begin with.

Rosenberg, president of the long established, 350-unit Dunkin' chain, views the situation cooly, but he too wonders about the chances for success of celebrity franchisers.

"Fifty per cent of all small businesses fail within two years," he said. "It is increasingly more difficult for independent businessmen to go into business. There are so many areas in which they must have expertise."

In franchising, he said, "You have to have sophisticated marketing, budgeting experience, quality control, acceptable equipment, a good program. Some managements might not be able to put these together."

Robert Grover, president of Snap-on Tools Corp., a franchiser incorporated 39 years ago, commented when questioned:

"Anonymity: this is the way to run a business. There is nothing wrong in an advertising gimmick such as a celebrity. But," he asked pointedly, "how do they transmit their wisdom?"

He added: "I'm not sure how well they'll work. I wish them the best. But if they fail they could blacken other franchisers. It could happen. I don't want to see franchising abused."

Ohio May Face Spending Curbs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. James A. Rhodes said Monday he may be forced to implement new "drastic" measures to maintain a balanced budget for the state.

He asked Finance Director Howard L. Collier to review the state's fiscal situation, saying that "economic uncertainties of the time demand that the stae of Ohio re-evaluae and inventory its financial position so that we may determine what we must do to maintain a balanced budget."

Rhodes said it may be necessary to curtail state expenses by such measures as a freeze on the hiring of state personnel, layoffs in some departments, delay of some state capital improvement projects and readjustment of state programs.

WASHINGTON MEMO

CHALMERS P. WYLIE
15th District of Ohio

The subject on which we received more letters last week than any other concerned a report that the Department of the Army had issued an order which would prohibit the use of the word "God" in the Character Guidance Programs conducted by the Army. All of your letters protested any such action. I felt as the constituents who wrote and sent the protests of my correspondents along with my own protest to the Secretary of Defense and the Department of the Army.

Secretary Melvin Laird on April 3 issued a statement in which he said "I want to state that there will be no prohibition against the use of "God" "Supreme Being," "Creator," "faith," "spiritual values" or similar words. References to these terms are appropriate for inclusion in the Character Guidance Program."

Similar letters came in from all over the United States. the quick action of the Secretary of Defense indicates once again the influence of letters from those we represent.

The Committee on Post Office and Civil Service's Subcommittee on Census and Statistics will continue to hear testimony next week from the Director of the Bureau of the Census on the topic of the 1970 Census questions.

I have received much constituent mail on this subject, and I am in accord with the principle of restricting any questions that violate the right of privacy. I will keep you informed on this matter.

Last week the Supreme Court held it to be all right for a union to fine members for exceeding a union-imposed output quota. In the decision the Supreme Court said that a union is free to restrain workers from being energetic and ambitious, and if ambitious workers are frustrated by union ceiling on production lines, they are "free to leave the union."

Ohio State University received two more grants this week — one was a National Science Foundation grant and the other was a 100,000 project grant to train teachers in adult basic education curriculum.

The very important Elmentary and Secondary Education Act will be considered this week. It extends the present law for an additional five years for a total authorization of 4 billion per year with an additional amendment providing for added funds for impacted school districts. Payments would now include children of families living in federally supported public housing units.

Title I provides a program of grants to local school districts distributed on the basis of certain poverty criteria, including the number of families with under 2,000 per year income. Title II includes grants to states for the purchase of instructional material — film, film libraries, books, etc. Title III is a program of grants for educational centers, educational research, and vocational technical schools. There are other titles which would include aid to the handicapped and bi-lingual language programs.

Another bill which has received considerable public attention and will be important is one pertaining to the matter of water pollution. It provides for actions to be taken in the case of pollution of navigable waters through the discharge of oil and other material where there is a pollution hazard: for the control of sewage from marine vessels and for mine acid pollution. It establishes grants for training of personnel in the field of water pollution and authorized the award.

A section of the bill which is of particular interest to Ohio would authorize grants and contracts for the prevention, removal and control of lake pollution. Lake Erie is one of those frequently mentioned in this connection. Again, because of the tremendous need for such legislation, this bill will probably pass without too much difficulty.

Available from my office are the following Health, Education, and Welfare publications: "The Child Who is Hard of Hearing," "The Child with a Speech Problem," "The Care of the Retarded Child," and "The Mentally Retarded Child — A Guide to Services of Social Agencies." Try and Stop Me

THE CAGEY vice-president of a company listed on the big board has added a red telephone to the two black ones on his desk. It's a direct line to the company president, he explains, and it's red to remind him not to use the same tone of voice he uses on his other phones.

A golf pro reluctantly agreed to play a round with the club's most incurable hacker, after being promised double his usual charge. The hacker, ever hopeful, teed up on a 3-par hole, waved his 8-iron menacingly eight or nine times, closed his eyes, and lunged for the ball. It sailed off far to the right of the green, hit a tree, bounced off a boulder, nearly decapitated an outraged member on an adjoining fairway, hit another tree, then, miraculously, dribbled on to the green and trickled into the cup for a hole in one!

The hacker threw his club jubilantly into the air and cried to the pro, "Gimme another ball, Jack! I think I've got the idea now!"

In a college history class a notoriously dilatory student was asked to name the date on which the Thirty Years War ended. After a considerable pause, the student declared, "1648." "Correct," rasped the professor, "but unless my ears deceive me, I distinctly heard that date whispered to you from the rear of the room." "Your ears didn't deceive you, Professor," the student told him solemnly. "This was just one more instance of history repeating itself."

Speaking Of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

The statistics are almost terrifying about the frequency with which young high school girls and boys in small and large cities all over America are being tempted to take drugs. "Goof Balls," a slang expression for barbiturates, are easily purchased from illicit, immoral peddlers who in many instances are students. These "pushers" can, in this way, supply their own demands and frequently they are responsible for starting the dependent feeling in their classmates. These sleeping pills can produce a sense of drowsiness which should alert teachers and parents to the fact that the child may be "on" something.

The same peddlers of "goof balls" also peddle "pep pills" or amphetamines, which help to keep drowsy students awake. Before long, these youngsters taking barbiturates are caught in a trap of sleepiness to escape reality, only to be followed by the pep pills to keep awake.

The use and abuse of these drugs is exceedingly dangerous because of the body harm and personality changes they can induce. It is an admitted fact that "goof ball" and "pep pill" users are on the lowest rung of a ladder that leads to marijuana and then frequently to hard narcotic addiction.

Not until sever punishment is meted out to those immoral people who make these drugs available can disaster be avoided in our young children. LSD, and any of these escapist drugs, are as easily purchased as a carbonated drink. Parents must be on the alert for any change of behavior if addiction to any drug is to be interrupted before it permanently sets in.

Cirrhosis of the liver is one of the major penalties paid by people who drink large quantities of alcohol over an extended period of time. It must be stated that cirrhosis is not limited to the alcoholic. Alcoholism is a disease that is no differest from a chronic lung condition or diabetes.

Cirrhosis is a degenerative process by which the liver cells are destroyed and replaced by functionless scar tissue. Since the liver plays a most important role in taking toxic substances out of the blood, permanent damage to it does insurmountable damage to the rest of the body organs. There are, of course, other causes of cirrhosis but undoubtedly alcohol is the major contributor. Obstruction of the outflow of bile, chronic infections, hepatitis and some toxic metals may also cause cirrhosis.

There is no guesswork about this disease. People may think they have cirrhosis but not until a complete series of tests are done on the liver, a so-called "liver profile," can the exact condition be determined.

One of the most gratifying advances in medicine is that liver transplants and other operations are now available to people with advanced cirrhosis. Successful as these operations can be, it is to the prevention of this disorder that energies should be devoted.

Military-Industry Complex

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

With billions in defense contracts going out to manufacturers from the Pentagon, it is easy to see why there should be considerable worry about the influence of the "military-industrial complex." But, from the available evidence, I would hate to predict any specific political effect from the big money spent on the ABM system.

There was simply no correlation between the way the votes in the 1968 election went and the Pentagon disbursements. Letters To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE — We welcome letters to the editor. In order to be considered for publication, they must bear the correct name and address of the writer. Anonymous letters and those signed with the request that signatures be withheld will not be accepted for publication. Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writers and not necessarily those of The Herald.

Dear Parents:

Do you know where your children are when they leave the house at night? Most of you probably do, but some of you only think you do, or worse yet, don't care.

Saturday evening some child left his home and was out past midnight. How do I know? I even know where he was and what he was doing. He was destroying mailboxes on Route 4. He not only beat them, he stole them.

Our mailbox was found on a dump behind the Veterans Hospital in Ross County. This is the third time our box has been attacked by the vandals that are allowed to run our country. Labor Day it was torn up completely and had to be replaced.

About a week after Halloween, it was smashed with a huge pumpkin. We didn't bother to replace it this time, just knocked the dents out the best we could. (It gets a little expensive.)

Then this weekend the box was stolen. Now if you think this is bad, wait another minute! Sunday night the same (probably) brats came back and stole the post. Now we are a little weary of having to bother our hard working Sheriff's department with little matters of this nature.

They have more important matters to attend to than chasing "wet behind the ears" punks around the county. They have auto accidents and other worthy people to attend to. Parents, please teach your children to respect themselves more than to lower themselves to this type of mischief.

This is not only mischief it is dangerous. It is a Federal offense. It is going to cause someone pain. The next time our property is bothered, we are going to shoot first and ask questions later.

This sounds hard but in these days of being so careful that criminals have all their rights, we have to make sure they are at the scene of the crime and if they are busy picking bird shot out of their back-side they won't get too far.

The E. J. DANIELS
Route 4

Dear Editor:

The recent accidents involving small children have prompted a movement among parents to form a vigilante committee. We are setting up neighborhood task forces all over the city to report anyone who is exceeding the speed limit, or otherwise driving unlawfully. We realize that our children must be taught to stay out of the streets, but in case one child should forget, we hope to alert the driver to drive at a safe speed in order to stop in case of an emergency.

The police cannot be everywhere, but, as concerned parents, we can observe our own streets, take down license numbers and description of car and driver if possible. We should then follow through by calling the police. If we carry this plan out, and not just threaten, we can help to cut down accidents and injuries.

We have started petitions in our area and a few others to enlist parents to become vigilantes in this effort. Get together with your neighbors and make this effort successful all over the city. The simple truth is we can put an end to speeding and reckless operation if we have the cooperation of all the parents.

5 Arrested For Wild Bank Holdup

CINCINNATI (AP) — Five Negro men were arrested following a wild $25,307 robbery Monday at a First National Bank branch here and were to appear today before a U. S. Commissioner.

Charged with bank robbery were James Mills, 28; Richard Walters Jr., 22; Thomas Ray, 22; and James Ray, 20. Raymond Robinson was charged with being an accessory after the fact. All are from Cincinnati and were being held by Cincinnati police pending transfer to federal officials.

Police and the FBI arrested them hours after the robbery in which several gunshots were fired and one of the men, James Ray, was shot.

The FBI said three armed men held all customers and bank employes at bay and fired wild shots, struck one employe on the head with a shotgun and then exchanged shots with an off-duty Cincinnati policeman Dave Schum.

"They were bad," said Bank Manager Chet Bryant. "They came in hollering and shooting."

About $23,000 of the money was recovered.

Rain Falls Across U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain fell over most of the nation today with the heaviest amounts coming in the southeast.

The Weather Bureau said showers or thunderstorms occured in 37 of the 48 contiguous states during the late night and early morning hours.

An inch or more of rain splattered on various points in Georgia and Alabama, including 1.28 inches at Tuscaloosa, Ala., and 1.30 at Athens, Ga.

Lesser amounts fell in the Upper Midwest, but any amount there is unwelcome. Overburdened rivers have spilled out of their banks in five states, taking eight lives and causing millions of dollars in damage.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 28 at Houlton, Maine, to 76 at Key West, Fla.

Gov. Rhodes Beats Critics To Punch On Spending Cuts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. James A. Rhodes, who was elected to office seven years ago on an austerity platform, thwarted an attempt Monday by Democrats to beat him at his own game.

Rep. William E. Hinig, D-32 New Philadelphia, said it was "probably more than a coincidence" that Rhodes' order Monday morning calling for cuts in state spending came just five hours before the Democrats' news conference.

In a statement prepared several days ago, Hinig blasted the administration for spending money on ads in out-of-state papers, for proposed "welcome to Ohio signs" and for an unprofitable state magazine.

Hinig was one of five members of the Democratic Policy Committee who appeared at the news conference to attack administration proposals.

Ohers were Reps. David L. Headley, D-96 Barberton, Donald J. Pease, D - 75, Oberlin, James F. Flannery, D-48 Cleveland and Sen. William B. Nye, D-28 Akron.

Hinig said Ohio pays $17,000 every time it places an ad in the Wall Street Journal. He also cited what they called other wastes in state government, including:

—State cars being misused.

—Bronze doors for the Statehouse that cost $100,000.

—The Wonderful World of Ohio magazine that costs $200,000 a year.

— A public restroom along I-71 to be opened May 31 at a cost of $62,700.

Headly attacked the State Controlling Board for "super powers" and for transferring funds from one account to another.

Pease said tax reform is necessary and the Rhodes administration refuses to consider it.

Hinig called for reevaluation of present state programs, saying Ohio should "cut out the fat, the waste, the inefficiencies."

Rhodes announced earlier Monday that he had ordered State Finance Director Howard Collier to review the state's fiscal situation "in light of current economic conditions." He said "drastic" measures might be necessary to maintain a balanced budget for the state.

Hear Evidence Shooting Planned

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Witnesses at the murder trial of Fred "Ahmed" Evans in Common Pleas Court Monday outlined a pattern of a two-week shopping spree for guns, ammunition and related supplies prior to the gun battle in Glenville area last July 23 in which 10 persons were killed.

Seven witnesses testified that Evans and his associates purchased more than a dozen rifles and nearly 2,000 rounds of ammunition, beginning July 11.

Evans, 37, a Black Nationalist leader and former Army sergeant, is charged with seven counts of first-degree murder in the slaying of three white Cleveland policemen and a Negro civilian during a sniper attack on police and the gun battle that followed.

Hungry People Not Getting Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government consultants have reported finding a family in Arkansas so hungry the children could not talk or walk and a family in New Mexico on a regular diet of wild birds and chipmunk.

The Social Development Corporation of Washington told a House Education and Labor Commitee task force there are serious roadblocks between hungry people and government food programs.

The research firm has a $127,000 contract with the Office of Economic Opportuniy to evaluate the anti-poverty agency's emergency food and medical program in 385 counties across the country.

The Senate's special hunger subcommittee was told meanwhile that malnutrition must be attacked as part of the broader problem of lack of income.

Ben W. Heineman, chairman of the President's Commission on Income Maintenance, testified that he personally has reached the conclusion that some sort of cash payment should be made to the nation's poor to enable them "to make the choices that the rest of us can make."

Luther Elliot Jr., project director for the investigating corporation, said many poor families are excluded from the food stamp program because they can't get to the distribution centers, can't afford to pay a share of the coupons, and can't prove their eligibility.

Some exmployers certify that man is making more than he actually is, Elliott said.

"We were told in two southern states that farm employers purposely make this implicaion in order to prevent families from getting commodities or food stamps on the theory that a hungry man will be a working man," he said.

Similar barriers bar poor families from the government's commodity distribution program, Elliot said. In addition, he said, "there are over two million children who yet need lunch assistance and do not have it."

Elliott said investigators found in Mississippi County, Ark., a woman with a three-year-old child that weighed 22 pounds and a two-year-old child that weighed 20 pounds.

"These children could not walk, talk or eat," he said.

Other investigators in Taos, N.M., found a World War II veteran, his wife and nine children living in a ten-foot by twelve-foot house.

"We learned they had a regular diet of birds and chipmunks, but this is not the diet the family preferred," Elliot said.

3 Of Rep. Wylie's Staff Quit; Didn't Get Pay Raise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three members of Rep. Chalmers Wylie's staff of nine have resigned because, they say, the Ohio Republican has decided to deny them automatic pay raises employes are scheduled to receive in July.

They said Monday that Wylie advised them he also would reduce their pay in June to offset the four to 10 per cent salary hikes that will be going to other government workers.

Harold Schellenger, Wylie's former administrative assistant, and his wife, a clerk in the office, said they resigned after the congressman "refused our appeals to treat his employes as all other federal employes are treated."

He said Wylie did this after voting for a raise of $12,500 to $42,500 for himself.

Wylie acknowledged that four staff members resigned recently, but said only two of them, Schellenger and his wife, quit because of money.

Wylie said he took the action after learning that his staff members had received a pay increase at the directive of the House speaker without his knowledge.

"I told my employes the speaker wasn't going to dictate the wages of my office," Wylie said.

The congressman said he also opposed the $12,500 wage boost given to all members of Congress.

Schellenger noted that Wylie did not vote against the congressional pay raises and added:

"Wylie continued to say he was against the raises but he did nothing to support any movement to stop it. Some congressmen said they would not take it—turning it back, giving it to scholarship funds—but he made no move to give it up."

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE — We welcome letters to the editor. In order to be considered for publication, they must bear the correct name and address of the writer. Anonymous letters and those signed with the request that signatures be withheld will not be accepted for publication. Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writers and not necessarily those of The Herald.

Dear Parents:

Do you know where your children are when they leave the house at night? Most of you probably do, but some of you only think you do, or worse yet, don't care.

Saturday evening some child left his home and was out past midnight. How do I know? I even know where he was and what he was doing. He was destroying mailboxes on Route 4. He not only beat them, he stole them.

Our mailbox was found on a dump behind the Veterans Hospital in Ross County. This is the third time our box has been attacked by the vandals that are allowed to run our country. Labor Day it was torn up completely and had to be replaced.

About a week after Halloween, it was smashed with a huge pumpkin. We didn't bother to replace it this time, just knocked the dents out the best we could. (It gets a little expensive.)

Then this weekend the box was stolen. Now if you think this is bad, wait another minute! Sunday night the same (probably) brats came back and stole the post. Now we are a little weary of having to bother our hard working Sheriff's department with little matters of this nature.

They have more important matters to attend to than chasing "wet behind the ears" punks around the county. They have auto accidents and other worthy people to attend to. Parents, please teach your children to respect themselves more than to lower themselves to this type of mischief.

This is not only mischief it is dangerous. It is a Federal offense. It is going to cause someone pain. The next time our property is bothered, we are going to shoot first and ask questions later.

This sounds hard but in these days of being so careful that criminals have all their rights, we have to make sure they are at the scene of the crime and if they are busy picking bird shot out of their back-side they won't get too far.

The E. J. DANIELS
Route 4

Dear Editor:

The recent accidents involving small children have prompted a movement among parents to form a vigilante committee. We are setting up neighborhood task forces all over the city to report anyone who is exceeding the speed limit, or otherwise driving unlawfully. We realize that our children must be taught to stay out of the streets, but in case one child should forget, we hope to alert the driver to drive at a safe speed in order to stop in case of an emergency.

The police cannot be everywhere, but, as concerned parents, we can observe our own streets, take down license numbers and description of car and driver if possible. We should then follow through by calling the police. If we carry this plan out, and not just threaten, we can help to cut down accidents and injuries.

We have started petitions in our area and a few others to enlist parents to become vigilantes in this effort. Get together with your neighbors and make this effort successful all over the city. The simple truth is we can put an end to speeding and reckless operation if we have the cooperation of all the parents.

Lace edged the bride's full-length mantilla, which was worn with a bouffant shoulder length veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of red and white sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley.

The bride's sister, Mrs Willard Amole, was matron of honor and Miss Cynthia Coron of Canton was maid of honor. Their formal-length gowns were styled with scoop necklines, bell sleeves and a floating coat effect at the back. Venice lace woven with chiffon accented the Empire waists Their headpieces were clusters of maize daisies and chiffon loops caught to pouf illusion veils. They carried colonial bouquets of blue and white daisies.

The bride's cousins, Miss Starr Lynn Tipton and Miss Valerie Jo Tipton of Lancaster, were bridesmaid and junior bridesmaid. They were attired identically to the honor attendant and carried blue and white shattered carnations in colonial bouquets.

Barbra Streisand, Katharine Hepburn Tie For Oscar

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The second tie in the 41-year history of the Academy Awards gives Oscars to both Barbra Streisand of "Funny Girl" and Katharine Hepburn of "The Lion in Winter"—and makes Miss Hepburn the first three-time winner.

BARBRA STREISAND in "Funny Girl."

Cliff Robertson in the role of the mentally retarded man whom doctors turn temporarily into a genius in "Charly" was named best actor of 1968 at Monday night's presentations.

KATHARINE HEPBURN in "The Lion in Winter."

"Oliver!," a musical spectacle based on Charles Dickens' 'Oliver Twist," was voted the year's best picture. It won in five categories, including best-director laurels for Sir Carol Reed with this, his first musical.

For supporting performances, the honors went to Jack Albertson as the blustering father in "The Subject Was Roses" and Ruth Gordon as the meddling neighbor and part-time witch in "Rosemary's Baby."

Races in all the top categories were close, but the selection of "Oliver!" as best picture over "The Lion in Winter" was a surprise to some observers. "The academy voters apparently wanted entertainment this year," one veteran Oscar-watcher commented.

Ingrid Bergman, presenting the best-actress Oscar, looked stunned and unbelieving as she opened the envelope containing the winners' names and exclaimed: "It's a tie!"

A tie happened only once before, in 1932, when best-actor awards went to both Fredric March for "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and Wallace Beery for "The Champ."

Miss Hepburn, 59, this year became the record holder for Oscar nominations with 11. Her previous awards as best actress were for work in "Morning Glory," 1933, and "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," last year. She is the first triple winner in the lead actor category, either male or female. Miss Hepburn also is the second star to win twice in succession. Louise Rainer accomplished this in the 1930s.

Walter Brennan, has won three Oscars but they were for supporting roles.

Miss Hepburn, who won as the queenly Eleanor of Aquitaine in "The Lion in Winter," didn't attend the ceremonies—just as she didn't the other two times she won. She was reported to be in New York.

Robertson, on location in the Philippines, was another absentee.

Miss Streisand, the Brooklyn girl who won with a rollicking portrayal of Fanny Brice in "Funny Girl," her first movie, said from the podium: "I'm very honored to be in such magnificent company as Katharine Hepburn. The first script of "Funny Girl" was written when I was 1? years old. Thank God it took so long to get it right.

"It's like when somebody asked if I'm happy. I said, 'Are you kidding? If I was happy I'd be miserable.' I'd like to thank all the members of the academy for making me miserable."

Asked about her comments backstage, she said: "Maybe some people are basically happy when they're miserable."

She said the award was "really unexpected. I never gave it much thought. I enjoy the work, and to get the award for it is just whipped cream on the cake."

There was no explanation of the tie balloting among the 3.030 voting members of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. Vote totals are never announced.

For best song the Oscar went to the intricate melody, "The Windmills of Your Mind," sung by Noel Harrison in "The Thomas Crown Affair." The French composer, Michel Legrand, was in Paris, working on another film score. The husband-wife lyricists, Marilyn and Alan Bergman, accepted their Oscars.

The Soviet Union's 6½-hour spectacular, "War and Peace," collected the award for best foreign language film. It was presented to the picture's beautiful, dark-haired star, Ludmilla Savalyeva.

Writing winners were James Goldman for adaptation of his play, "The Lion in Winter" and comedian-scenarist Mel Brooks for his original screenplay of "The Producers."

The award to the gray-haired, balding Albertson capped a long career ranging from burlesque comedy to vaudeville, theater and supporting movie roles.

CLIFF ROBERTSON in "Charly."

"My eternal gratitude will always be reserved for the man who made this moment possible, Frank Gilroy, who wrote 'The Subject Was Roses,' " Albertson said. There were tears in his eyes as he addressed the crowd of 3,000 in the Music Center Pavilion and a nationwide television audience.

Backstage, Albertson remarked that he won Broadway's Tony award in the play and that author Gilroy "insisted I do both the play and the movie."

The 72-year-old Miss Gordon drew loud laughter by admitting she made her film debut in 1915 and: "I can't tell you how encouraging a thing like this is."

To newsmen backstage she confided, "My husband said if I didn't win this time he wasn't going to bring me again."

She was nominated as a supporting actress in "Inside Daisy Clover," a 1965 film. She is also a writer like her husband, Garson Kanin, and with him was nominated for screenplays of "A Double Life" in 1947, "Adam's Rib," 1950, and "Pat and Mike," 1952.

Bob Hope, who has been master of ceremonies of 14 Oscar presentations, was replaced this year by 10 alternating actors and actresses serving as hosts, hostesses and award presenters. But Hope made an appearance, giving Martha Raye the Jean Hersholt award "for great humanitarian service."

Crunch On ABM Question Near; Partisanship Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration has moved to shore up Republican congressional strength behind President Nixon's Safeguard defense program even as a top GOP official says the antimissile system should not be a political issue.

A White House conference was called today for Republican leaders to produce a party strategy for getting approval of the embattled Safeguard system, which has been under strong attack in the Senate by members of both parties.

Sen. John G. Tower of Texas, one of those attending the White House session, said in an interview, "I think all of the party resources will be mustered on this issue. There will be a campaign for popular support of the President's decision and an effort to line up congressional backing for it."

Maryland Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton, new Republican national chairman, said Monday the national committee will assemble background information and prepare speeches in support of Safeguard.

But, he said, he hoped the system can be eliminated as a political issue.

How could it escape becoming political if the Republican National Committee supplied supporters with ammunition? he was asked.

"We are going to furnish non-political background and use it for political purposes," he replied with a grin.

Morton also indicated that if the missile system becomes the subject of a partisan fight it would be mostly the fault of the Democrats.

Mike Mansfield, Senate Democratc Leader, admtted Monday some of hs party members want to turn the Safeguard dispute into a partisan struggle. But, he said, most of the critios, Republican and Democratic, are opposing Safeguard for national security reasons.

One GOP Safeguard opponent, Sen. John Sherman Cooper of Kentucky, also urged that the fight should not become a political dispute. Safeguard "should be removed from the arena of partisan politics as far as is possible," he said.

Mansfield said he had received "disturbing reports of outside efforts to synthesize a political partisanship where, in fact, none has existed and where none should exist."

Morton shrugged off suggestions that the administration is pressuring Republican opponents to get in line, although some GOP Safeguard critics have confirmed privately they have been feeling a squeeze on the issue.

Embezzlement Arrest Made

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — An assistant U.S. attorney says final figures may show "close to $1 million" was involved in an alleged embezzlement at the Cuyahoga Savings Association branch in Chagrin Falls.

Building contractor George R. Leonardo, 41, was arrested at his Chagrin Falls home Monday on a federal grand jury indictment accusing him of aiding and abetting in the embezzlement of $111 400 from Cuyahoga Savings.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Harry E. Pickering said Leonardo, president of Leonardo Builders, Inc., was involved with former Cuyahoga Savings Vice President Andrew F. Fiorenza.

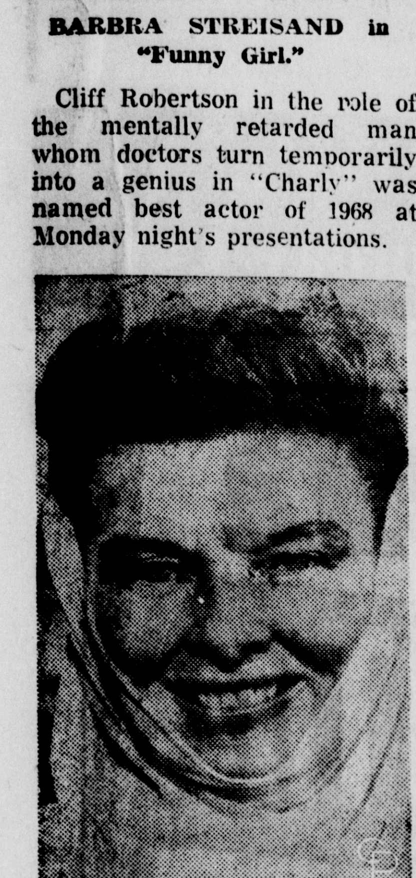
Barbra Streisand, Katharine Hepburn Tie For Oscar

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The second tie in the 41-year history of the Academy Awards gives Oscars to both Barbra Streisand of "Funny Girl" and Katharine Hepburn of "The Lion in Winter"—and makes Miss Hepburn the first three-time winner.

BARBRA STREISAND in "Funny Girl."

Cliff Robertson in the role of the mentally retarded man whom doctors turn temporarily into a genius in "Charly" was named best actor of 1968 at Monday night's presentations.



KATHARINE HEPBURN in "The Lion in Winter."

"Oliver!," a musical spectacle based on Charles Dickens' 'Oliver Twist,'' was voted the year's best picture. It won in five categories, including best-director laurels for Sir Carol Reed with this, his first musical.

For supporting performances, the honors went to Jack Albertson as the blustering father in "The Subject Was Roses" and Ruth Gordon as the meddling neighbor and part-time witch in "Rosemary's Baby."

Races in all the top categories were close, but the selection of "Oliver!" as best picture over "The Lion in Winter" was a surprise to some observers. "The academy voters apparently wanted entertainment this year," one veteran Oscar-watcher commented.

Ingrid Bergman, presenting the best-actress Oscar, looked stunned and unbelieving as she opened the envelope containing the winners' names and exclaimed: "It's a tie!"

A tie happened only once before, in 1932, when best-actor awards went to both Fredric March for "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" and Wallace Beery for "The Champ."

Miss Hepburn, 59, this year became the record holder for Oscar nominations with 11. Her previous awards as best actress were for work in "Morning Glory," 1933, and "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner," last year. She is the first triple winner in the lead actor category, either male or female. Miss Hepburn also is the second star to win twice in succession. Louise Rainer accomplished this in the 1930s.

Walter Brennan, has won three Oscars but they were for supporting roles.

Miss Hepburn, who won as the queenly Eleanor of Aquitaine in "The Lion in Winter," didn't attend the ceremonies—just as she didn't the other two times she won. She was reported to be in New York.

Robertson, on location in the Philippines, was another absentee.

Miss Streisand, the Brooklyn girl who won with a rollicking portrayal of Fanny Brice in "Funny Girl," her first movie, said from the podium: "I'm very honored to be in such magnificent company as Katharine Hepburn. Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Irish Eyes Aren't Smiling Anymore

DEAR ABBY: I'm an Irish-Catholic, and my father doesn't allow me to date fellows who aren't of my faith. Well, I'm going with a very good-looking Jewish guy. He has blue eyes and dark curly hair and he could pass for Irish. His name is "EINBERT" but I introduced him to my father as "FINNEGAN."

They only get to say hello and goodby, but pretty soon I'm afraid they'll get into a conversation and my father will find out the boy's not Irish, and then what will I do? I don't want to be the first teen-ager to land on the moon.

IRISH EYES

DEAR EYES: Tell your father the truth before he finds out himself. You may be the first teen-ager to land on the moon, but you'll get there with a clear conscience.

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorcee with an extremely bright 6 - year - old child, I'll call Debbie.

Debbie's father lives near us with a woman who is not his wife. This woman is expecting a baby any day.

Debbie's father visits us often, and we go to visit him. (Whatever differences he and I may have had, I must say he was a good father.)

The problem: Debbie assumes her father and this woman are married, but they don't even bother to put up a respectable front, and I'm scared to death one of the days the child will find out they aren't married.

I don't want my daughter to think that living together without marriage is right.

What would YOU do? Try to keep Debbie away from her father? (That doesn't seem fair). Tell Debbie the truth myself? Trust to Luck?

DEBBIE'S MOM

DEAR MOM: I'd trust to luck. Maybe they'll get married before Debbie gets wise.

DEAR ABBY: Never before have I written to a newspaper column, or sent an unsigned letter, but that letter from the 41-year-old virgin who was still waiting, came so close to home, I had to tell my story:

In 50 years of marriage I never once saw my wife naked. She is a closet disrober and wears long, heavy nightgowns. Some years back I bought her a lovely, fairly sheet nightgown, and she took it back to the store and exchanged it for one exactly like those she's always worn.

She's been a wonderful mother to our children, and has many fine qualities, but she's a "touch-me-not." Hands are not for patting or carressing, and should be kept to one's self.

I know my wife will never change, so I have learned to live with things as they are, and have kept myself busy with outside activities.

If women like "WAITING" (and my wife is one of them) could have learned early in life to shake loose from their Pollyanna ways, their lives would be so much richer.

People who have never learned how to give love or accept it, miss the best part of life.

I assure you there isn't a normal man living who doesn't want a warm, responsive, uninhibited wife. God bless you, Abby.

NOT DEAD YET—BUT DYING

DEAR NOT DEAD: The 2 most tragic aspects of your letter are (1) Timing. It should have been written 50 years ago. (2) It should have been addressed to your wife. At least you'd have tried while there was still time.

CONFIDENTIAL TO TED: Yes, I've heard that the best way to overcome one's fear of horses is to get right back on the horse that threw you, but marriage is a horse of a different color, and once you've been thrown either stay off horses for a while or try another horse.

Cancer Research Chips Away In Bits At Big Problem

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Is cancer research winning pay-offs?

Once a year, the American Cancer Society stages a kind of annual check-up into this question—at a seminar where scientists report their latest findings to science writers.

Early this month, 51 scientists spoke at such a seminar in New Orleans. Many in effect lighted new candles of hope for better detection, treatment and prevention of some kinds of cancer, and new insights into the puzzling behavior of cancer cells.

But, as in the past, only time will tell whether initial hopes will sputter out or become enduring contributions to resolve the mysteries of cancer.

Cancer is not just one but probably many diseases, depending partly in what organs or tissues it occurs, specialists point out. An immense challenge is to learn why a "wild" cancer cell behaves differently from the normal, well-behaved cell.

Faced with this, researchers peck away at bits of the huge problem.

They place bets across a wide board, since no one can be sure there is one big pay-off number.

The "answer" might come in knowledge of causes—and therefore means of prevention—or in cashing in on ways in which a drug or radiation could kill a cancer cell but not harm a normal one, or through basic understandings of normal life processes among the billions of cells that make up a living body.

Thus, this year's research checkup produced a number of optimistic reports on small pieces of the cancer attack. Among them:

—A blood test might become able to detect cancers of the bowel almost before they really become started. That could mean early removal or special treatment before the cancers spread, even before radical surgery might be needed. Cancers of the colon and rectum are expected to afflict 73,000 Americans this year, killing 46,000 of them. That toll will be second only to lung cancer deaths.

The basis for this preliminary hope is discovery by Dr. Phil Gold and associates of McGill University in Montreal of a detectable chemical substance—characteristic or specific only to bowel cancers—that circulates in the bloodstream. Testing for it, they were able to identify a small number of patients with bowel cancer.

Dr. Gold expressed a proper caution. It's easy, he said, to bat 1.000 in a few times at bat, but it's the total season record that counts. In other words, several thousand patients must be tested before the value of such a blood test can become clear.

—Cancer cells growing in test-tube cultures are found to connect themselves by bridges of their own cellular material. They apparently communicate this way.

When one of these cancer cells divides, it apparently shoots an electrical signal through the bridges to make all the inter-connected cancer cells split into two cells at the same time— far sooner than they would if they were not in contact.

A chain reaction takes place, not unlike the chain reaction of splitting of atoms in a bursting A-bomb, said Clarence D. Cone, Jr., director of the Laboratory of Molecular Biophysics at Langley Research Center, Hampton, Va., of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

If the same thing happens to cancer cells within the body, it could help explain why cancers grow so rapidly at the expense of healthy cells, which divide at a more leisurely pace. And ways might be found to interrupt the process.

—Plans are afoot, said other researchers, to use fevers of artificially induced heat to kill off cancer cells that have spread throughout the body. Their approach is based upon past findings that heating the blood flowing into cancerous arms or legs has helped cure or control some malignant growths. Anti-cancer drugs could be added to the heat treatment for a double-punch.

—Promising new avenues are being explored to increase natural resistance to cancer. Cancer might be a pretty common thing— repeatedly a few cancer cells may appear, but they are controlled by antibodies or other mechanisms to kill them off quickly. Boosting natural defenses would keep such cancer "starts" from taking root.

—Evidence keeps growing that viruses may cause some human cancers. Scientists are chipping away at identifying and isolating some suspects. Vaccines might be made against the culprits, as against polio virus.

—Up to 80 per cent of cancers might be caused by chemicals in our environment, by one estimate. Delicate new tests are exploring the cancer-causing potentials in things we eat, breathe in or live with, including air pollutants, pesticides and drugs. Once causes are pinpointed, they could be avoided.

—Newer studies find more evidence that some cancers—such as breast and stomach—may run in families. If this is proven, then people in such families who face higher than normal risks should have more frequent checkups to detect cancers at a more curable stage.

—A new operation is helping some people whose arms or legs swell to painful size because cancer surgery removed lymph glands, part of the body's drainage system. The operation connects a little known organ in the abdomen—the omentum—to the swollen limb to drain off accumulated fluids.

So go some bits and pieces from the research roulette against cancer.

Get New Gimmick To Please Mao

HONG KONG (AP) — Chinese Communists have thought up a new gimmick to please Mao Tse-tung.

Travelers from Canton report that Maoists are wearing battery operated lapel badges at night that intermittently flash a miniature portrait of their leader.

People once thought that the moon's surface was so smooth and crystalline that like a mirror it reflected the continents and seas of earth. Actually, the moon's face is incredibly rough.

ISSUE IS SKIRTED—Miniskirted UPI reporter Betty Work stands with State Sen. Marigene Valiquette of Toledo in the Ohio General Assembly in Columbus, where several senators threatened to revoke Miss Work's floor privileges if she didn't put on a longer skirt. Senator Valiquette came to her aid, said she wished she had one herself. After an hour's recess, the skirt was left kind of up in the air.

Cancer Research Chips Away In Bits At Big Problem

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Is cancer research winning pay-offs?

Once a year, the American Cancer Society stages a kind of annual check-up into this question—at a seminar where scientists report their latest findings to science writers.

Early this month, 51 scientists spoke at such a seminar in New Orleans. Many in effect lighted new candles of hope for better detection, treatment and prevention of some kinds of cancer, and new insights into the puzzling behavior of cancer cells.

But, as in the past, only time will tell whether initial hopes will sputter out or become enduring contributions to resolve the mysteries of cancer.

Cancer is not just one but probably many diseases, depending partly in what organs or tissues it occurs, specialists point out. An immense challenge is to learn why a "wild" cancer cell behaves differently from the normal, well-behaved cell.

Faced with this, researchers peck away at bits of the huge problem.

They place bets across a wide board, since no one can be sure there is one big pay-off number.

The "answer" might come in knowledge of causes—and therefore means of prevention—or in cashing in on ways in which a drug or radiation could kill a cancer cell but not harm a normal one, or through basic understandings of normal life processes among the billions of cells that make up a living body.

Thus, this year's research checkup produced a number of optimistic reports on small pieces of the cancer attack. Among them:

—A blood test might become able to detect cancers of the bowel almost before they really become started. That could mean early removal or special treatment before the cancers spread, even before radical surgery might be needed. Cancers of the colon and rectum are expected to afflict 73,000 Americans this year, killing 46,000 of them. That toll will be second only to lung cancer deaths.

The basis for this preliminary hope is discovery by Dr. Phil Gold and associates of McGill University in Montreal of a detectable chemical substance—characteristic or specific only to bowel cancers—that circulates in the bloodstream. Testing for it, they were able to identify a small number of patients with bowel cancer.

Dr. Gold expressed a proper caution. It's easy, he said, to bat 1.000 in a few times at bat, but it's the total season record that counts. In other words, several thousand patients must be tested before the value of such a blood test can become clear.

—Cancer cells growing in test-tube cultures are found to connect themselves by bridges of their own cellular material. They apparently communicate this way.

When one of these cancer cells divides, it apparently shoots an electrical signal through the bridges to make all the inter-connected cancer cells split into two cells at the same time— far sooner than they would if they were not in contact.

A chain reaction takes place, not unlike the chain reaction of splitting of atoms in a bursting A-bomb, said Clarence D. Cone, Jr., director of the Laboratory of Molecular Biophysics at Langley Research Center, Hampton, Va., of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

If the same thing happens to cancer cells within the body, it could help explain why cancers grow so rapidly at the expense of healthy cells, which divide at a more leisurely pace. And ways might be found to interrupt the process.

—Plans are afoot, said other researchers, to use fevers of artificially induced heat to kill off cancer cells that have spread throughout the body. Their approach is based upon past findings that heating the blood flowing into cancerous arms or legs has helped cure or control some malignant growths. Anti-cancer drugs could be added to the heat treatment for a double-punch.

—Promising new avenues are being explored to increase natural resistance to cancer. Cancer might be a pretty common thing— repeatedly a few cancer cells may appear, but they are controlled by antibodies or other mechanisms to kill them off quickly. Boosting natural defenses would keep such cancer "starts" from taking root.

—Evidence keeps growing that viruses may cause some human cancers. Scientists are chipping away at identifying and isolating some suspects. Vaccines might be made against the culprits, as against polio virus.

—Up to 80 per cent of cancers might be caused by chemicals in our environment, by one estimate. Delicate new tests are exploring the cancer-causing potentials in things we eat, breathe in or live with, including air pollutants, pesticides and drugs. Once causes are pinpointed, they could be avoided.

—Newer studies find more evidence that some cancers—such as breast and stomach—may run in families. If this is proven, then people in such families who face higher than normal risks should have more frequent checkups to detect cancers at a more curable stage.

—A new operation is helping some people whose arms or legs swell to painful size because cancer surgery removed lymph glands, part of the body's drainage system. The operation connects a little known organ in the abdomen—the omentum—to the swollen limb to drain off accumulated fluids.

So go some bits and pieces from the research roulette against cancer.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Irish Eyes Aren't Smiling Anymore

DEAR ABBY: I'm an Irish-Catholic, and my father doesn't allow me to date fellows who aren't of my faith. Well, I'm going with a very good-looking Jewish guy. He has blue eyes and dark curly hair and he could pass for Irish. His name is "EINBERT" but I introduced him to my father as "FINNEGAN."

They only get to say hello and goodby, but pretty soon I'm afraid they'll get into a conversation and my father will find out the boy's not Irish, and then what will I do? I don't want to be the first teen-ager to land on the moon.

IRISH EYES

DEAR EYES: Tell your father the truth before he finds out himself. You may be the first teen-ager to land on the moon, but you'll get there with a clear conscience.

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorcee with an extremely bright 6 - year - old child, I'll call Debbie.

Debbie's father lives near us with a woman who is not his wife. This woman is expecting a baby any day.

Debbie's father visits us often, and we go to visit him. (Whatever differences he and I may have had, I must say he was a good father.)

The problem: Debbie assumes her father and this woman are married, but they don't even bother to put up a respectable front, and I'm scared to death one of the days the child will find out they aren't married.

I don't want my daughter to think that living together without marriage is right.

What would YOU do? Try to keep Debbie away from her father? (That doesn't seem fair). Tell Debbie the truth myself? Trust to Luck?

DEBBIE'S MOM

DEAR MOM: I'd trust to luck. Maybe they'll get married before Debbie gets wise.

DEAR ABBY: Never before have I written to a newspaper column, or sent an unsigned letter, but that letter from the 41-year-old virgin who was still waiting, came so close to home, I had to tell my story:

In 50 years of marriage I never once saw my wife naked. She is a closet disrober and wears long, heavy nightgowns. Some years back I bought her a lovely, fairly sheet nightgown, and she took it back to the store and exchanged it for one exactly like those she's always worn.

She's been a wonderful mother to our children, and has many fine qualities, but she's a "touch-me-not." Hands are not for patting or carressing, and should be kept to one's self.

I know my wife will never change, so I have learned to live with things as they are, and have kept myself busy with outside activities.

If women like "WAITING" (and my wife is one of them) could have learned early in life to shake loose from their Pollyanna ways, their lives would be so much richer.

People who have never learned how to give love or accept it, miss the best part of life.

I assure you there isn't a normal man living who doesn't want a warm, responsive, uninhibited wife. God bless you, Abby.

NOT DEAD YET—BUT DYING

DEAR NOT DEAD: The 2 most tragic aspects of your letter are (1) Timing. It should have been written 50 years ago. (2) It should have been addressed to your wife. At least you'd have tried while there was still time.

CONFIDENTIAL TO TED: Yes, I've heard that the best way to overcome one's fear of horses is to get right back on the horse that threw you, but marriage is a horse of a different color, and once you've been thrown either stay off horses for a while or try another horse.

Get New Gimmick To Please Mao

HONG KONG (AP) — Chinese Communists have thought up a new gimmick to please Mao Tse-tung.

Travelers from Canton report that Maoists are wearing battery operated lapel badges at night that intermittently flash a miniature portrait of their leader.

People once thought that the moon's surface was so smooth and crystalline that like a mirror it reflected the continents and seas of earth. Actually, the moon's face is incredibly rough.

ISSUE IS SKIRTED—Miniskirted UPI reporter Betty Work stands with State Sen. Marigene Valiquette of Toledo in the Ohio General Assembly in Columbus, where several senators threatened to revoke Miss Work's floor privileges if she didn't put on a longer skirt. Senator Valiquette came to her aid, said she wished she had one herself. After an hour's recess, the skirt was left kind of up in the air.

TRACKMAN OF THE WEEK — Dick Walters, a junior at Circleville High School, has been named "trackman of the week" by Coach Jim Lint. "We picked him because of his improvement," the coach said. During the past week, Walters ran the 120-yard high hurdles in 16.3 and the 180-yard low hurdles in 22.2, his best times of the season. He also runs the second leg of the 880-yard relay.

Daniels Near Unanimous ABA All-Star

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Indiana center Mel Daniels missed by just two ballots of becoming a unanimous selection on the American Basketball Association All-Star team announced today.

Daniels received 965 points out of a possible 1,000 in the voting by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters covering the league. Joining Daniels on the first team were guards Larry Jones of Denver and James Jones of New Orleans, and forwards Rick Barry of Oakland and Connie Hawkins of Minnesota.

The Jones boys, first in ABA history to score more than 2,000 points in a single season, received an identical number of points—895.8.

Barry received 876.7 and Hawkins 873.3.

Daniels, 6-foot-9 star at New Mexico two years ago, and the league Rookie of the Year in 1967-68, was named the league's outstanding player.

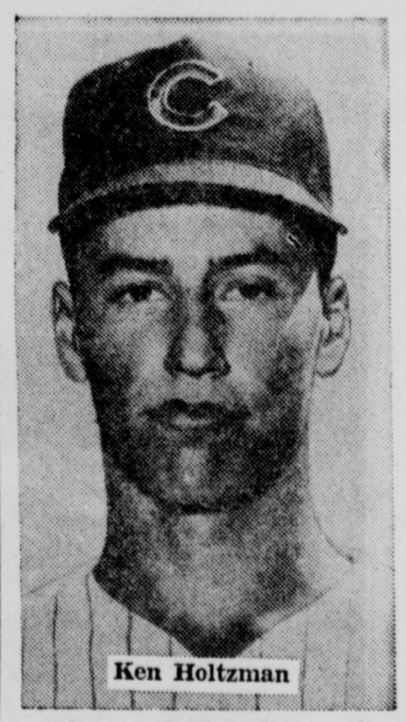
Named to the second team were Miami's Don Freeman, Louis Dampier of Kentucky, John Beasley of Dallas, Doug Moe of Oakland and Austin Robbins of New Orleans.

Expos Win Home Opener, 8-7, Over Cardinals

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dan McGinn and the Montreal Expos were upset winners as major league baseball came to Canada for the first time ever. Back in the United States Richie Allen came up with a surprise, too.

The Expos won a wild home opener 8-7 Monday over St. Louis before a standing room crowd of 29,184 on Coco Laboy's double and run-scoring single by winning pitcher McGinn in the seventh inning.



Ken Holtzman

And in Philadelphia, Allen crashed a 500-foot two-run homer that helped the Phils to a 5-1 victory over the New York Mets. The tape-measure blast of Allen's comes as no surprise though, but what he did after it certainly rates a double-take.

Allen, trotting to his first base position after the third-inning clout, tipped his hat to the applauding home opener crowd of 13,070. It was the first time in years he had acknowledged the cheers of the fans who have booed him in the past.

In other National League games, Chicago swept to its sixth victory in seven games, stopping Pittsburgh 4-0 and Houston bombed Los Angeles 11-5. The San Francisco at Cincinnati game was rained out in the only other scheduled game.

McGinn, a fireballing lefthander, earned his first major league victory with 5 1-3 scoreless innings of relief, allowing only three hits.

McGinn, drafted by the Expos from the Cincinnati Reds, said he was getting even with the Cardinals. "They beat me in my first major league game last year in 11 innings."

The Expos had blown a 6-0 lead as Mack Jones drove in five runs with a three-run homer and two-run triple in the first two innings but the Cards came back with a seven-run fourth inning.

The Expos contributed five errors and Dal Maxvill sliced a grand slam homer to right field in the inning.

Deron Johnson's second-inning homer had given the Phils a 1-1 tie before Allen cracked a Jim McAndrew pitch over a 10-foot high sign atop the left field roof for his first home run of the year.

Woody Fryman got the victory as he scattered four hits as the Mets lost their fourth straight.

After the game Allen was asked why he tipped his hat: "If I told you why, they'd shoot me in the morning," Allen said.

"I'm not looking to change may image around here," he said. I don't care a thing about the crowd."

Allen hasn't changed his attitude against the Mets, either. It was his 26th home run against them and he has a .330 lifetime average against New York pitching.

"I'm a mistake hitter and the Met pitcher must make a lot of mistakes," Allen said.

Doug Rader and John Edwards knocked in two runs apiece in a seven-run third inning in the Astros' victory. Houston right-hander Larry Dierker blanked the Dodgers on two hits until the eighth when Wes Parker crashed a two-run homer.

Ken Holtzman stopped the Pirates on seven hits and the victory moved the Cubs into first place in the East Division.

The Cubs shelled Pirates' starter Bob Veale for two runs in each of the first two innings as Billy Williams doubled in one run and Randy Hundley singled in another in the opening inning. Don Kessinger and Glenn Beckert kocked in the Cubs' second-inning runs.

Minor Trouble Mars Expos Debut

MONTREAL (AP) — "There is," said the voice booming over the loudspeaker, "nothing wrong with this game.

"We won."

The voice was partly correct.

The Montreal Expos had won, edging the St. Louis Cardinals 8-7 Monday in the first major league baseball game ever played outside the United States.

But there were things wrong.

The voice over the loudspeaker was trying to explain one of them to many in the standing room only crowd of 29,184 who stayed after the game to witness the curious ceremony taking place between home plate and the pitcher's mound.

There, kneeling, were the umpires, measuring distances to see that everything was in order —a routine that should have been finished prior to the game but couldn't be accomplished because of the confusion surrounding Montreal's maiden effort in the majors.

General Manager Jim Fanning, who had started the day by helping install folding chairs in sun-drenched Jarry Park ended it by calling a staff meeting to iron out the list of 22 "Bugs" he had scribbled on an envelope during the opening day operation.

But while Fanning could do something about the groundskeepers not wearing their hats, the mini-skirted usherettes gathering the knots and the organ music not being jazzy enough there wasn't much he could do about the condition of the playing field.

And that had been blasted by Curt Flood, the all-star St. Louis center fielder.

"The officials went through so much pain for the fans it's a shame they didn't take the players into consideration," Flood said. "I've played on some bad diamonds, but this is the worst. I pray I don't get killed out there."

Flood's complaint concerned the condition of the field, which was soggy and lumpy from the thawing frost pushing up from underneath. It was so soft that plate umpire Mel Steiner was standing ankle deep in the turf behind home by the end of the game.

"They're going to work on things," Steiner said. "There's a problem because the ground is soft. I've told them to try and pack it down.

Besides the condition of the field—which naturally enough will improve as the weather gets better later in the year—there were only minor problems on opening day, such as too many dignitaries and not enough chairs.

Royals Defeat Pilots, 2-1; In Expansion Team Clash

by DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pete Ward and the Kansas City Royals have pocketed a pair of prized keepsakes—reluctantly gift-wrapped by Hoyt Wilhelm and John Kennedy.

Ward's two-run double off knuckleballer Wilhelm climaxed a four-run eighth inning rally that swept the Chicago White Sox past the California Angels 4-3 Monday night.

Kansas City capitalized on two errors by Seattle shortstop Kennedy and nipped the Pilots 2-1 in the season's first meeting of American League expansion teams.

"It's so difficult to hit Wilhelm, I'm gonna clip out the box score and frame it," Ward said after bringing the White Sox from behind against the 45-year-old relief specialist, who pitched for Chicago last season.

Kennedy would like to forget his first 1969 start. The Seattle glove man misplayed a sixth-inning grounder before Joe Foy's checked-swing single tied the game 1-1, and booted Jerry Adair's smash in the eighth as Foy raced home from second with the winning run.

In the only other game on the AL schedule, Boston topped Baltimore 5-3, Tony Conigliaro delivering the deciding run with an infield single in his first Fenway Park appearance since he suffered a serious eye injury two years ago.

The White Sox went into the eighth trailing 3-0, with just one hit off Jim McGlothlin. But successive singles by Gail Hopkins, Buddy Bradford and pinch hitter Walt Williams produced one run and chased the Angels starter.

Wilhelm came on and fanned Duane Josephson, but Carlos May doubled home another run and Ward stroked his go-ahead double one out later.

Dick Stuart homered for the Angels off winner Tommy John.

CHS Baseball Rained Out

Rain halted the South Central Ohio League baseball game between Circleville and Miami Trace at the end of three innings Monday.

The game, played on Tiger Field, was tied at 6-6 with all the runs being scored in the third inning.

Dannie Fouts, CHS baseball coach, announced the game will be rescheduled at a later date. The date will be decided following next week's tournament drawing, Fouts indicated.

Bryce Brown started on the mound for Circleville last night. He gave up five hits, all in the third inning. Two Circleville errors contributed to the runs scored in the inning by the visiting Panthers.

Steve Bihl was the starting pitcher for the Panthers. He was relieved in the third by Thompson. Circleville's next game will be at Hillsboro Wednesday.

Randy Dresbach has tentatively been given the starting pitching assignment for the game. On Thursday, Bryce Brown is scheduled to pitch against Chillicothe. The game will be played at Chillicothe.

Sid Sink Newest Running Star To Appear In College

By HAL PARIS

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Bowling Green, which has had its share of top notch sprinters, may be developing one of the outstanding distance runners in the midwest.

He is Sid Sink, 5-foot-10, 140 pound sophomore majoring in mathematics.

Sink, from Fairview Park, raised eyebrows last year when he won the 3000 meter steeplechase in the prestige Central Collegiates at Notre Dame with an impressive 9:00.2 clocking. He competed unattached.

To Bowling Green track Coach Mel Brodt, the victory did not come as a complete surprise. Sink won the state high school cross country meet as a senior. He also finished ninth last November in the NCAA cross country and won the All-Ohio and Mid-American Conference cross country titles.

The Falcon runner was one of two double winners last Saturday at the Ohio University Relays in Athens. Competing in the six-mile run for the first time ever, Sink covered the distance in 28:50.6 shaving more than a minute off the old relays' record.

After that race, Sink ran another mile and three-quarters "just to warm down."

The Bowling Green athlete came right back Saturday with a 4:12.7 triumph in the mile run.

"The steeplechase is his best event but he still has a long way to go," Brodt observed.

The Falcon coach is confident that Sink will get better with experience. "His main attributs are strength and endurance. But he lacks real speed."

Brodt has been working with Sink trying to improve his speed. "Speed will determine whether he will be a great or good performer," Brodt said.

Indiana, Dallas In Do-Or-Die ABA Situations

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indiana and Dallas, with barely enough time to take a deep breath after avoiding elimination from the American Basketball Association semifinal playoffs, start panting again tonight when they face another do-or-die situation.

Indiana kept alive in its Eastern Division semi by crushing Kentucky in the final period for a 116-97 victory Monday night in Indianapolis that cut the Colonels lead to 3-2 in the best-of-7 series.

Dallas also pulled within 3-2 of New Orleans in its Western Division semi by pulling away early to a 123-112 triumph at New Orleans.

The scenes for the sixth games, now shift to Louisville and New Orleans tonight, while Minnesota also tries to avoid elimination in its sixth game against Miami in another East semi at Minnesota. Miami leads that one 3-2.

CHS Golfers Defeat Logan

Circleville High School's golfers, playing in the rain at Logan Country Club Monday, won their second match of the season, 8-3, over the hosts.

Four golfers tied for medalist honors in the match. For Circleville, Mike Young and Billy Adkins both carded 42s, while Herb Sommers and Pinky Johnson of Logan had a 42.

Young, playing against Johnson, picked up 1½ points. Adkins, playing in the number four spot against Bob Henderson, who had a 44, earned two points for the team.

Greg Heiskell, the CHS number two golfer Monday, shot a 46 compared to Sommers' 42. Mike Ayers, Circleville's number three golfer Monday, came up with a 48 and his opponent, Brian Goldsberry had a 49. Ayers earned 1½ points for the team.

Playing in the number five position, Mike Vaughan carded a 46 and earned two points towards team total. His opponent, Keith Sloan, shot a 58.

Circleville had a 224 team total compared to Logan's 235.

The Tiger golfers go against Upper Arlington at Scioto Country Club Thursday.

Tribe Ready For Battle With Tigers

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Sam McDowell gets another chance today to bring the Cleveland Indians their first 1969 victory.

The southpaw was named to oppose Earl Wilson of the Detroit Tigers at Cleveland Municipal Stadium.

McDowell lasted only five innings in his first start against the Tigers Thursday in Detroit.

Manager Alvin Dark said Cap Peterson, brought up from Portland Monday, would start today, probably in right field.

Peterson fills the spot on the roster vacated by Horacio Pina, who was optioned to Portland Sunday.

The Indians sold outfielder Jimmie Hall to the New York Yankees Monday for cash plus a minor league player to be named later.

Tribe General Manager Gabe Paul said sale of Hall made room for "another player—one we've been trying to get for quite a while." He declined to name the player.

TRACKMAN OF THE WEEK — Dick Walters, a junior at Circleville High School, has been named "trackman of the week" by Coach Jim Lint. "We picked him because of his improvement," the coach said. During the past week, Walters ran the 120-yard high hurdles in 16.3 and the 180-yard low hurdles in 22.2, his best times of the season. He also runs the second leg of the 880-yard relay.

Daniels Near Unanimous ABA All-Star

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Indiana center Mel Daniels missed by just two ballots of becoming a unanimous selection on the American Basketball Association All-Star team announced today.

Daniels received 965 points out of a possible 1,000 in the voting by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters covering the league. Joining Daniels on the first team were guards Larry Jones of Denver and James Jones of New Orleans, and forwards Rick Barry of Oakland and Connie Hawkins of Minnesota.

The Jones boys, first in ABA history to score more than 2,000 points in a single season, received an identical number of points—895.8.

Barry received 876.7 and Hawkins 873.3.

Daniels, 6-foot-9 star at New Mexico two years ago, and the league Rookie of the Year in 1967-68, was named the league's outstanding player.

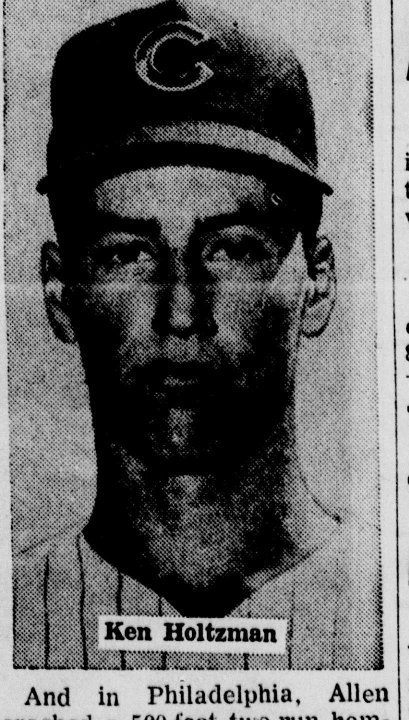
Named to the second team were Miami's Don Freeman, Louis Dampier of Kentucky, John Beasley of Dallas, Doug Moe of Oakland and Austin Robbins of New Orleans.

Expos Win Home Opener, 8-7, Over Cardinals

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

Dan McGinn and the Montreal Expos were upset winners as major league baseball came to Canada for the first time ever. Back in the United States Richie Allen came up with a surprise, too.

The Expos won a wild home opener 8-7 Monday over St. Louis before a standing room crowd of 29,184 on Coco Laboy's double and run-scoring single by winning pitcher McGinn in the seventh inning.



Ken Holtzman

And in Philadelphia, Allen crashed a 500-foot two-run homer that helped the Phils to a 5-1 victory over the New York Mets. The tape-measure blast of Allen's comes as no surprise though, but what he did after it certainly rates a double-take.

Allen, trotting to his first base position after the third-inning clout, tipped his hat to the applauding home opener crowd of 13,070. It was the first time in years he had acknowledged the cheers of the fans who have booed him in the past.

In other National League games, Chicago swept to its sixth victory in seven games, stopping Pittsburgh 4-0 and Houston bombed Los Angeles 11-5. The San Francisco at Cincinnati game was rained out in the only other scheduled game.

McGinn, a fireballing left-hander, earned his first major league victory with 5 1-3 scoreless innings of relief, allowing only three hits.

McGinn, drafted by the Expos from the Cincinnati Reds, said he was getting even with the Cardinals. "They beat me in my first major league game last year in 11 innings."

The Expos had blown a 6-0 lead as Mack Jones drove in five runs with a three-run homer and two-run triple in the first two innings but the Cards came back with a seven-run fourth inning.

The Expos contributed five errors and Dal Maxvill sliced a grand slam homer to right field in the inning.

Deron Johnson's second-inning homer had given the Phils a 1-1 tie before Allen cracked a Jim McAndrew pitch over a 10-foot high sign atop the left field roof for his first home run of the year.

Woody Fryman got the victory as he scattered four hits as the Mets lost their fourth straight.

After the game Allen was asked why he tipped his hat: "If I told you why, they'd shoot me in the morning," Allen said.

"I'm not looking to change may image around here," he said. I don't care a thing about the crowd."

Allen hasn't changed his attitude against the Mets, either. It was his 26th home run against them and he has a .330 lifetime average against New York pitching.

"I'm a mistake hitter and the Met pitcher must make a lot of mistakes," Allen said.

Doug Rader and John Edwards knocked in two runs apiece in a seven-run third inning in the Astros' victory. Houston right-hander Larry Dierker blanked the Dodgers on two hits until the eighth when Wes Parker crashed a two-run homer.

Ken Holtzman stopped the Pirates on seven hits and the victory moved the Cubs into first place in the East Division.

The Cubs shelled Pirates' starter Bob Veale for two runs in each of the first two innings as Billy Williams doubled in one run and Randy Hundley singled in another in the opening inning. Don Kessinger and Glenn Beckert kocked in the Cubs' second-inning runs.

Minor Trouble Mars Expos Debut

MONTREAL (AP) — "There is," said the voice booming over the l o u d s p e a k e r, "nothing wrong with this game.

"We won."

The voice was partly correct. The Montreal Expos had won, edging the St. Louis Cardinals 8-7 Monday in the first major league baseball game ever played outside the United States.

But there were things wrong.

The voice over the loudspeaker was trying to explain one of them to many in the standing room only crowd of 29,184 who stayed after the game to witness the curious ceremony taking place between home plate and the pitcher's mound.

There, kneeling, were the umpires, measuring distances to see that everything was in order—a routine that should have been finished prior to the game but couldn't be accomplished because of the confusion surrounding Montreal's maiden effort in the majors.

General Manager Jim Fanning, who had started the day by helping install folding chairs in sun-drenched Jarry Park ended it by calling a staff meeting to iron out the list of 22 "Bugs" he had scribbled on an envelope during the opening day operation.

But while Fanning could do something about the groundskeepers not wearing their hats, the mini-skirted usherettes gathering the knots and the organ music not being jazzy enough there wasn't much he could do about the condition of the playing field.

And that had been blasted by Curt Flood, the all-star St. Louis center fielder.

"The officials went through so much pain for the fans it's a shame they didn't take the players into consideration," Flood said. "I've played on some bad diamonds, but this is the worst. I pray I don't get killed out there."

Flood's complaint concerned the condition of the field, which was soggy and lumpy from the thawing frost pushing up from underneath. It was so soft that plate umpire Mel Steiner was standing ankle deep in the turf behind home by the end of the game.

"They're going to work on things," Steiner said. "There's a problem because the ground is soft. I've told them to try and pack it down.

Besides the condition of the field—which naturally enough will improve as the weather gets better later in the year—there were only minor problems on opening day, such as too many dignitaries and not enough chairs.

Teays Valley Youth Baseball Meeting Called

Members of the Teays Valley Youth Baseball League will meet at Ashville Shelter House 6 p.m. Thursday for the purpose of door-to-door selling of tickets for merchandise to be given away June 9.

The next regular meeting of the league will be April 24 at the Ashville Shelter House at 7:30 p.m. Anyone having money from the sale of tickets or contributions is asked to turn it in at that time.

The league is still in need of managers, coaches and umpires. Anyone interested in helping along these lines is urged to attend this meeting. Final registration has been moved up to May 3 instead of May 17 in order to give teams more time to organize and practice. Registration will be held in Room 46 at Teays Valley High School. South entrance to school will be open.

Tribe Ready For Battle With Tigers

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Sam McDowell gets another chance today to bring the Cleveland Indians their first 1969 victory.

The southpaw was named to oppose Earl Wilson of the Detroit Tigers at Cleveland Municipal Stadium.

McDowell lasted only five innings in his first start against the Tigers Thursday in Detroit.

Manager Alvin Dark said Cap Peterson, brought up from Portland Monday, would start today, probably in right field.

Peterson fills the spot on the roster vacated by Horacio Pina, who was optioned to Portland Sunday.

The Indians sold outfielder Jimmie Hall to the New York Yankees Monday for cash plus a minor league player to be named later.

Tribe General Manager Gabe Paul said sale of Hall made room for "another player—one we've been trying to get for quite a while." He declined to name the player.

CHS Golfers Defeat Logan

Circleville High School's golfers, playing in the rain at Logan Country Club Monday, won their second match of the season, 8-3, over the hosts.

Four golfers tied for medalist honors in the match. For Circleville, Mike Young and Billy Adkins both carded 42s, while Herb Sommers and Pinky Johnson of Logan had a 42.

Young, playing against Johnson, picked up 1½ points. Adkins, playing in the number four spot against Bob Henderson, who had a 44, earned two points for the team.

Greg Heiskell, the CHS number two golfer Monday, shot a 46 compared to Sommers' 42. Mike Ayers, Circleville's number three golfer Monday, came up with a 48 and his opponent, Brian Goldsberry had a 49. Ayers earned 1½ points for the team.

Playing in the number five position, Mike Vaughan carded a 46 and earned two points towards team total. His opponent, Keith Sloan, shot a 58.

Circleville had a 224 team total compared to Logan's 235.

The Tiger golfers go against Upper Arlington at Scioto Country Club Thursday.

Royals Defeat Pilots, 2-1; In Expansion Team Clash

by DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Pete Ward and the Kansas City Royals have pocketed a pair of prized keepsakes—reluctantly gift-wrapped by Hoyt Wilhelm and John Kennedy.

Ward's two-run double off knuckleballer Wilhelm climaxed a four-run eighth inning rally that swept the Chicago White Sox past the California Angels 4-3 Monday night.

Kansas City capitalized on two errors by Seattle shortstop Kennedy and nipped the Pilots 2-1 in the season's first meeting of American League expansion teams.

"It's so difficult to hit Wilhelm, I'm gonna clip out the box score and frame it," Ward said after bringing the White Sox from behind against the 45-year-old relief specialist, who pitched for Chicago last season.

Kennedy would like to forget his first 1969 start. The Seattle glove man misplayed a sixth-inning grounder before Joe Foy's checked-swing single tied the game 1-1, and booted Jerry Adair's smash in the eighth as Foy raced home from second with the winning run.

In the only other game on the AL schedule, Boston topped Baltimore 5-3, Tony Conigliaro delivering the deciding run with an infield single in his first Fenway Park appearance since he suffered a serious eye injury two years ago.

The White Sox went into the eighth trailing 3-0, with just one hit off Jim McGlothlin. But successive singles by Gail Hopkins, Buddy Bradford and pinch hitter Walt Williams produced one run and chased the Angels starter.

Wilhelm came on and fanned Duane Josephson, but Carlos May doubled home another run and Ward stroked his go-ahead double one out later.

Dick Stuart homered for the Angels off winner Tommy John.

CHS Baseball Rained Out

Rain halted the South Central Ohio League baseball game between Circleville and Miami Trace at the end of three innings Monday.

The game, played on Tiger Field, was tied at 6-6 with all the runs being scored in the third inning.

Dannie Fouts, CHS baseball coach, announced the game will be rescheduled at a later date. The date will be decided following next week's tournament drawing, Fouts indicated.

Bryce Brown started on the mound for Circleville last night. He gave up five hits, all in the third inning. Two Circleville errors contributed to the runs scored in the inning by the visiting Panthers.

Steve Bihl was the starting pitcher for the Panthers. He was relieved in the third by Thompson. Circleville's next game will be at Hillsboro Wednesday.

Randy Dresbach has tentatively been given the starting pitching assignment for the game. On Thursday, Bryce Brown is scheduled to pitch against Chillicothe. The game will be played at Chillicothe.

2 Home Track Meets On CHS Weekly Schedule

The Circleville High School track team has two meets this week.

Tonight the Tigers host Fairfield Union and on Thursday Washington C. H.

At the Newark Relays Saturday, Mel Smith was fourth in the 2-mile run. His time of 10:34.9 was his best of the season.

Phil Pike did not place in the mile run, but had a time of 4:49, his best of the year.

Sid Sink Newest Running Star To Appear In College

By HAL PARIS

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Bowling Green, which has had its share of top notch sprinters, may be developing one of the outstanding distance runners in the midwest.

He is Sid Sink, 5-foot-10, 140 pound sophomore majoring in mathematics.

Sink, from Fairview Park, raised eyebrows last year when he won the 3000 meter steeplechase in the prestige Central Collegiates at Notre Dame with an impressive 9:00.2 clocking. He competed unattached.

To Bowling Green track Coach Mel Brodt, the victory did not come as a complete surprise. Sink won the state high school cross country meet as a senior. He also finished ninth last November in the NCAA cross country and won the All-Ohio and Mid-American Conference cross country titles.

The Falcon runner was one of two double winners last Saturday at the Ohio University Relays in Athens. Competing in the six-mile run for the first time ever, Sink covered the distance in 28:50.6 shaving more than a minute off the old relays' record.

After that race, Sink ran another mile and three-quarters "just to warm down."

The Bowling Green athlete came right back Saturday with a 4:12.7 triumph in the mile run.

"The steeplechase is his best event but he still has a long way to go," Brodt observed.

The Falcon coach is confident that Sink will get better with experience. "His main attributs are strength and endurance. But he lacks real speed."

Brodt has been working with Sink trying to improve his speed. "Speed will determine whether he will be a great or good performer," Brodt said.

Indiana, Dallas In Do-Or-Die ABA Situations

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indiana and Dallas, with barely enough time to take a deep breath after avoiding elimination from the American Basketball Association semifinal playoffs, start panting again tonight when they face another do-or-die situation.

Indiana kept alive in its Eastern Division semi by crushing Kentucky in the final period for a 116-97 victory Monday night in Indianapolis that cut the Colonels lead to 3-2 in the best-of-7 series.

Dallas also pulled within 3-2 of New Orleans in its Western Division semi by pulling away early to a 123-112 triumph at New Orleans.

The scenes for the sixth games, now shift to Louisville and New Orleans tonight, while Minnesota also tries to avoid elimination in its sixth game against Miami in another East semi at Minnesota. Miami leads that one 3-2.

Knicks Fight Off Celtics, 112-104

NEW YORK (AP) — With their backs against the wall, the New York Knicks have resorted to thievery to make sure their no tomorrow wasn't today in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Stealing time by swiping the ball, the Knicks fought off elimination in their Eastern Division final series against Boston by beating the Celtics 112-104 Monday night to cut their deficit to 3-2 in the best-of-7 series.

In Memoriam

In living memory of our daughter, wife, mother, sister and aunt, Martha Mary (Stonerock) Lagore who's life was taken two years ago today, April 15, 1967.
Not a day do we forget you,
In our hearts you are always here.
As we loved you—so we miss you,
As it draws another year.
You left a beautiful memory, Martha,
And a sorrow too great to be told:
But for us who have loved and lost you,
That memory will never grow old.
They say that time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget.
But so far has only proven, Martha,
How much we miss you yet.
And our family circle has been broken.
Sadly missed by Mother, Father, Husband, Daughter, Son Sister, Nephew and Niece

Reds Face SF Giants At Home

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, who failed to halt the streaking Atlanta Braves over the weekend, will meet another hot team—San Francisco—here tonight.

The Reds and Giants were scheduled to play Monday night but rain forced postponement of the contest and it has not been rescheduled.

The Giants, who will pitch Bob Bolin in the first of a two-game series, have won their last three games, bouncing back after dropping their first three to Atlanta.

The Braves took the series with the Reds 3-1 and the Reds even had bad luck in the one victory—Gary Nolan suffered a pulled muscle in his pitching arm.

Team physician Dr. George Ballou confirmed that Monday and said that "Now, it's just a matter of time. It doesn't appear to be serious but with a pull you never really know how bad it is. Therefore, you can't say how long Nolan will be out. We're going to wait a couple of days and see what happens, then let him throw."

Nolan started the game Saturday but gave way after catching his spikes while pitching to Hank Aaron. The Reds won 12-3.

In the Giants, the Reds will be seeing something new this year—Willie Mays is leading off. Accustomed to batting third or fourth, Mays has led off nine innings this year and reached base seven times, so the switch seems to be paying off.

Jim Maloney will hurl for the Reds tonight.

Duffy's Teams Hold Edge Over Ara's

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Football teams coached by Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State hold a 7-2-1 edge over Ara Parseghian-coached teams.

Duffy won all five games State played against Northwestern when Ara coached there. At Notre Dame, Ara has a 2-2-1 record against Duffy's Spartans.

Steady Job

DENVER (AP) — Alan T. Loucks last year celebrated his 40th year with the same life insurance company. He joined the firm before graduating from the University of Colorado where he was an all-conference football end.

NAVAL OPERATION?—No, but it's close as these 199th Light Infantry Brigade soldiers plow through a marshy canal on edge of a pineapple plantation 18 miles west of Saigon in South Vietnam. They're making a sweep of enemy infiltration routes. (Radiophoto)

In Memoriam

In living memory of our daughter, wife, mother, sister and aunt, Martha Mary (Stonerock) Lagore who's life was taken two years ago today, April 15, 1967.

Not a day do we forget you,
In our hearts you are always here.
As we loved you—so we miss you,
As it draws another year.
You left a beautiful memory, Martha,
And a sorrow too great to be told:
But for us who have loved and lost you,
That memory will never grow old.
They say that time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget.
But so far has only proven, Martha,
How much we miss you yet.
And our family circle has been broken.

Sadly missed by Mother, Father, Husband, Daughter, Son Sister, Nephew and Niece

Reds Face SF Giants At Home

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds, who failed to halt the streaking Atlanta Braves over the weekend, will meet another hot team—San Francisco—here tonight.

The Reds and Giants were scheduled to play Monday night but rain forced postponement of the contest and it has not been rescheduled.

The Giants, who will pitch Bob Bolin in the first of a two-game series, have won their last three games, bouncing back after dropping their first three to Atlanta.

The Braves took the series with the Reds 3-1 and the Reds even had bad luck in the one victory—Gary Nolan suffered a pulled muscle in his pitching arm.

Team physician Dr. George Ballou confirmed that Monday and said that "Now, it's just a matter of time. It doesn't appear to be serious but with a pull you never really know how bad it is. Therefore, you can't say how long Nolan will be out. We're going to wait a couple of days and see what happens, then let him throw."

Nolan started the game Saturday but gave way after catching his spikes while pitching to Hank Aaron. The Reds won 12-3.

In the Giants, the Reds will be seeing something new this year—Willie Mays is leading off. Accustomed to batting third or fourth, Mays has led off nine innings this year and reached base seven times, so the switch seems to be paying off.

Jim Maloney will hurl for the Reds tonight.

Duffy's Teams Hold Edge Over Ara's

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Football teams coached by Duffy Daugherty of Michigan State hold a 7-2-1 edge over Ara Parseghian-coached teams.

Duffy won all five games State played against Northwestern when Ara coached there. At Notre Dame, Ara has a 2-2-1 record against Duffy's Spartans.

Worried Demo Senators Eye 1970 Political Campain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The legacy of a landslide falls due next year and, ironically, it poses a problem for the Democrats who won it.

Democratic senators who won their terms in former President Lyndon B. Johnson's electoral blitz of 1964 must run again in 1970, and the Republican National Committee says the GOP has a chance of winning control of the Senate for the first time in more than two decades.

Democratic analysts are frankly worried.

Normally, an off-year election produces congressional gains for the party which does not control the White House, but in 1970 the arithmetic and the circumstances could work against tradition.

There are 33 Senate seats at stake, 25 of them now Democratic, only eight Republican.

Democrats now control the Senate, 58 to 42. But a gain of eight seats—making the parties even—would put the GOP in charge because Vice President Spiro T. Agnew would cast the decisive vote in a tie.

Frequently, an off-year election casts the presidential party in a defensive role. But the Democrats are not sure that will be the case next year.

One official at the Democratic National Committee already is advising Sen. Fred R. Harris, the chairman, that the party should brace for a GOP on the offensive.

This Democratic strategist maintains the party should map its campaign plans on the assumption that President Nixon will succeed in settling the two biggest problems he faces: The war in Vietnam and inflation at home.

If that is the situation when campaign time comes, he says, "the Republicans will not only not be on the defensive in 1970 but quite on the contrary will be robustly on the attack."

Furthermore, a Democratic analysis of the 1964 returns indicates another problem—Republicans who won seats in that election withstood the undertow of Sen. Barry Goldwater's losing ticket, while Democrats rode with the presidential tide. Johnson polled 43 million votes, Goldwater 27 million.

Outside the Deep South, only five Democratic senators elected in 1964 ran ahead of the Johnson ticket. The others, presumably, benefitted from the presidential returns.

In four of their victories, Democratic analysts believe, the coattail power of Johnson's massive showing was the decisive factor.

The Senate elections they put in this category are those of Sens. Howard Cannon of Nevada, Joseph M. Montoya of New Mexico, William Proxmire of Wisconsin and Stephen M. Young of Ohio.

Against that background, Democrats are advising their Senate candidates to make an early start on the 1970 race, not only to build for the November election, but also in hopes of averting troublesome primary contests.

The strategy-makers also counsel concentration on the suburban precincts, where President Nixon made his best showing last November.

SPORTS Highlights

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The American Basketball Association holds its player draft today to honor a new member, the Carolina Cougars, formerly the Houston Mavericks.

Officially, all 15 rounds will be held today, but there has been speculation the first two rounds were held secretly several weeks ago.

The league has not announced results of any previous draft, but the Miami Floridians have signed their first choice, Larry Cannon of LaSalle.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Four horses came down to the line nose to nose and Lane Road, owned by Elmer Cowan and John Spicer of Groveport, was the photo finish winner in Monday's feature race at Beulah Park.

With jockey Mike Perrotta aboard, Lane Road toured the 5½ furlongs in 1:06 2-5 to capture a $2,800 purse. The 3-year-old paid $20.80, $5.40 and $3.

Campeon returned $2.60 and $2.40. Great Promise showed for $4.60.

BOSTON (AP) — Tony Conigliaro's dramatic return to Fenway Park had it all—two heart-warming, standing ovations followed by a game-winning single, even if he did call it later "the weakest hit I've ever had."

The courageous young Boston Red Sox slugger, playing his first game in Fenway Park since his near-tragic beaning on Aug. 18, 1967, was cheered for about a minute as the players were introduced prior to the club's home opener against Baltimore Monday.

The record crowd of 35,341 then repeated its tribute when he came to bat in the first inning.

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio (AP)—Bev Lee, Miami Trace's All - Ohio halfback last year, has decided to attend Capital University in Columbus next fall, his football coach, John Beckley, announced Monday.

Top Economic Policymakers Try To Soothe Big Labor

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — The administration sent its top economic policymakers before the AFL-CIO's leaders today to give assurances that President Nixon's three-way squeeze on inflation won't put millions out of work.

Chairman Paul W. McCracken of the Council of Economic Advisors, Secretary of the Treasury David M. Kennedy and Arthur M. Burns, counselor to the President, were on the agenda of the extraordinary closed-door meeting at the luxurious Greenbrier Hotel.

Despite a tight curtain of silence, AFL-CIO sources have disclosed that labor officials are disturbed by Nixon's planned cutback in domestic spending and fear that some of his lieutenants would be willing to permit a painful rise in unemployment to insure that inflation is quashed.

Nixon's anti-inflation strategy—extension of the surtax, cutbacks in federal spending and a tight rein on credit—was endorsed at Monday's opening session by the top economist of the Johnson administration, Dr. Arthur Okun.

"The No. 1 economic problem remains that of restraining inflation without endangering our economic prosperity in the process," said Okun, who headed the President's Economic Council until the White House changed hands.

With the present package of anti-inflation tools, Okun added, "I am optimistic that it can be done."

Okun's endorsement was not surprising, because the Nixon program is essentially the same one he helped to prepare for former President Lyndon B. Johnson. It has been adopted by Nixon, but reinforced with an additional $2.4 billion reduction in the federal budget for fiscal 1970.

The union chiefs, including AFL-CIO President George Meany, declined to comment on the newly-pared Nixon budget, which reportedly will cut deeply into some programs favored by labor. They were similarly mum on the Okun's defense of the Nixon policy of "gradual but persistent" restraint.

BACK IN POLITICS in New York is former Mayor Robert F. Wagner, trying for his old City Hall job.

Posturometer To Help Pick Perfect Posture Winner

This Saturday, the "Pyramidal System of Posturology" will be used to help determinine the young lady from Pickaway County with the most perfect posture.

It will be accomplished by the use of the "posturometer", an automatic recording plumb-line instrument.

This versatile system of postural measurement makes possible a variety of structural measurements. It is used in schools, clinics, gymnasia, and physical fitness testing laboratories.

The posturometer findings include head tilt, shoulder level and rotation, and pelvic level.

The contest will take place April 19 at the L-K Restaurant, starting at 6:30 p.m. Friends of contestants, judges, and sponsors are welcome to attend the event.

Entry blanks for young ladies, age 17 thru 22, with no marital status, may be obtained from Circleville, Logan Elm, Teays Valley, and Westfall High Schools, the L-K Restaurant, or by calling 474-5809.

Commissioners

R. N. Bowers farm in Circleville Twp. — are operating under an extension of a court injunction.

* * *

JUDGE William Ammer has indicated that he will not extend the injunction past the present deadline. The Mets landfill cannot meet new rigid state sanitary landfill requirements because it is in the flood plain of the Scioto River. Ohio Division of Wildlife officials believe the operation is in violation of a law forbidding the littering of streams and rivers which is under the jurisdiction of the department of natural resources.

However, they have not filed any action because of the involvement of the court in the operation of the landfill.

Commissioners have been told by County Prosecutor Roy Huffer the Solid Waste Disposal District they formed last year cannot enter into a contract with a private individual for disposal.

Because of this they have ceased to consider entering into a contract with Barthelmas to operate a landfill at the present. If they decide to contract with the Great Lakes Industrial Sales Co., they would have to dissolve the Solid Waste Disposal District.

Commissioners believe that if they continue with their plans to establish a sanitary landfill in Washington Twp., residents of the area will seek a court injunction to prohibit it.

Washington Twp. PTO

The Washington Twp. Parent Teacher Organization held its final meeting of the year Thursday.

The fifth grade opened the program with a "Hansel and Gretel" puppet show. The theater and the puppets were made in their art classes under the direction of Mrs. Roger May, assisted by William Chandler.

Miss Lynne Locke, Washington Twp. music teacher, directed the music for the show. There were display tables of the various types of art the students had created during the year.

Following the puppet show a short business meeting was conducted. The president reminded the group of the annual spring carnival scheduled from 5 to 8 p.m. May 2.

Nelson Stevens was named president for 1969-70. Other officers are: Merle Swank, vice president; Mrs. Ned Kraft, secretary; Mrs. Ora Benner, treasurer.

After the meeting, Miss Locke introduced her fourth grade pupils, who played two songs on their flute-o-phones.

Suspected Bomber Kills 2 Officers

CHICAGO (AP) — Two policemen were slain in a shootout with a former Marine suspected of planting a number of bombs in public places, one of which killed a woman a week ago in a department store.

Firing rifles and pistols and hurling homemade bombs, Frank Kulak, 42-year-old veteran of fighting in World War II and Korea, barricaded himself Monday in his third-floor flat on the city's South Side to hold off police seeking to question him.

The bullet-riddled bodies of the policemen were found on a third-floor porch after Kulak surrendered.

Two other policemen and a civilian were wounded in the prolonged exchange of shots and several others were injured by falling debris from the explosions.

Kulak told police that he wanted to show people the horror of war.

Before he was taken away in a patrol car, Kulak was asked why he did it.

"Well, they came at me," he said. "The police, that's who. They came after me."

The siege began when three policemen went to Kulak's door about 3 p.m. to question him about several recent South Side bombings, including an explosion April 7 at a store in which a woman was killed and eight others injured.

When the policemen identified themselves, they said, Kulak fired through the door with an automatic weapon, wounding Detective William McInerney, 45. Detective Michael A. Spiotto said Kulak moments later emptied a carbine into Sgt. James Schaffer, 48, and Det. Jerome A. Stubig, 40, whose bodies were found later on the porch of the three-story brick building.

At this point, police said, Kulak barricaded himself in his apartment. He was armed with what a police spokesman called "a small arsenal."

The arsenal included a large amount of black powder, a number of concussion grenades and homemade bombs, a grenade launcher, several automatic weapons and a .45-caliber automatic pistol.

Police exchanged gunfire with Kulak for nearly an hour. Several grenades and bombs, hurled or shot by Kulak, rocked nearby buildings and shattered windows up to two blocks away.

Cease-Fire Is Reimposed In Mideast

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An artillery battle raged along most of the Suez Canal today, the Israeli army announced. It was the ninth consecutive day that Israeli and Egyptian forces had exchanged fire across the waterway.

An Israeli spokesman said Egypt opened fire at 12:30 p.m. on Israeli troops entrenched on the east bank of the canal, first along the southern half of the waterway and shortly after as far north as El Qantara.

Israeli forces were firing back "to silence the sources of the Egyptian shelling," the spokesman said.

Israeli and Arab gunners also dueled today across the Jordan River cease-fire line, and Israel and Jordan each claimed the other started that fighting.

An Israeli army spokesman said an Israeli patrol was attacked with bazooka, mortar and small arms fire near Ashdot Y'Aqov, on the southern shore of the Sea of Galilee. One Israeli soldier was slightly injured, the spokesman reported.

A Jordanian military spokesman said the Israelis opened up on Jordanian forces, touching off a 35-minute machine gun and tank duel. He said two Jordanian soldiers were slightly injured.

Commissioners

R. N. Bowers farm in Circleville Twp. — are operating under an extension of a court injunction.

* * *

JUDGE William Ammer has indicated that he will not extend the injunction past the present deadline. The Mets landfill cannot meet new rigid state sanitary landfill requirements because it is in the flood plain of the Scioto River. Ohio Division of Wildlife officials believe the operation is in violation of a law forbidding the littering of streams and rivers which is under the jurisdiction of the department of natural resources.

However, they have not filed any action because of the involvement of the court in the operation of the landfill.

Commissioners have been told by County Prosecutor Roy Huffer the Solid Waste Disposal District they formed last year cannot enter into a contract with a private individual for disposal.

Because of this they have ceased to consider entering into a contract with Barthelmas to operate a landfill at the present. If they decide to contract with the Great Lakes Industrial Sales Co., they would have to dissolve the Solid Waste Disposal District.

Commissioners believe that if they continue with their plans to establish a sanitary landfill in Washington Twp., residents of the area will seek a court injunction to prohibit it.
